POLITICAL RACE WAXES HOT

Five Weeks Campaign Gives
Promises of Battle

G. O. P. PARTY IS SPLIT

Dark-White Given Edge in Gubernatorial Race

There is going to be some fierce hand to hand fighting in the political trenches in Ohio in the next five weeks in view of the contests that exist for various state offices on both party tickets.

Eight candidates are out for the G. O. P. gubernatorial nomination and 12 want to be lieutenant-governor.

On the Democratic side it is not so bad. Governor Donahay has one opponent, and there are only four candidates for second place on the ticket.

Practically all down the line on both tickets however, there are contests for places.

With the close competition that will mark the next five weeks in Ohio politics, branches may be made which will be carried into the regular campaign. Not neither party it seems is likely to suffer more than the other, so it's a 50-50 break.

DAVIS HAS EDGE
The Republican gubernatorial battle has party leaders guessing. With the vote split eight ways the houses declare a chance to go together on one man seems for distant.

Insiders are pointing to Harry L. Davis to cop the nomination if he can win a large share of the dry vote. James A. James, A. White, the Anti-saloon league favorite.

White thru the Anti-saloon league started his campaign with a great advantage over rivals. Thru the organization he has been mailing tens of thousands of church members, W. C. T. U. workers, and has lived up the prohibition element practically solid.

It is conceded that practically 10 per cent of the liberal vote will be cast for Homer Durand, light wine and beer advocate. Size of his vote two years ago was a distinct surprise. No one, however, is so rash as to predict his nomination, political dogmatists claim.

When it comes to Lieutenant Governor the confusion is still worse. Thirteen candidates are ready to thrust the knife deep into rivals to gain a vote.

Coming over to the Democratic side of the race, Governor Donahay has one opponent, and there are only four candidates for second place on the ticket.

The largest number of Democrats after one office is five for state auditor. Four jurists seek nomination for supreme court. Included are Judge Walter H. Kinder, former justice of the local court of common pleas, and Judge George E. Starn, of Wayne, who has sat in court in Lima during a term last year.

LIST OF CANDIDATES
A complete list of state candidates for both parties are as follows:

Democratic Governor—A. V. Donahay, James C. B. Batty, Lieutenant-Governor—Howard C. Black, Earl P. Bloom, James I. Fogarty, Frank S. Krause, Secretary of State—J. H. Newman and Lester C. Riddle, Auditor—Floyd Atwill, David E. Butler, J. H. Kaufman, Harry E. McCollister and H. Sage Valentine, Treasurer—Hamilton G. DeWoe, Attorney General—D. F. McDonald and Thomas H. Morrow, Supreme Court—J. P. Clark, Walter H. Kinder, O. F. O. Neil and George A. Starn.

Republican candidates for Governor are—E. E. Burkett, John L. Cable, Harry L. Davis, Homer Durand, George B. Harris, Joe B. Sieber, C. C. Smith and James A. White, Lieutenant Governor—Sen. J. F. Atwood, Clinton D. Boyd, John H. Cheater, Roland G. Davis, Henry L. Emerson, Asher A. Galbreath, John F. Harrison, Charles H. Lewis, David A. Liggett, John E. McCree, Carl A. McGee, Edwin Reed, G. W. Shanklin, Secretary of State—Thad H. Brown, Ed J. Hummel, Auditor—James T. Tracy, Treasurer—Harry S. Day, Attorney General—Bert B. Buckley, C. C. Crabbe, Wesley L. Grills.

Supreme Court—James I. Allread, Harlan F. Beukel, Frank W. Geiger, Reynold R. Kinkade and James E. Robinson.

24-HOUR CLOCK SYSTEM URGED ON GERMAN ROADS

MUNICH, Germany—Insistable pressure is being brought to bear upon the German railway administration to adopt the system of time by the hours of 1-24 instead of 1-12 A. M. and 1-12 P. M.

Travelers returning from Austria point how much easier the system is in these countries, where everybody knows that 17 o'clock is 5 p. m.

Several years ago an international conference for standardizing the railway time tables of continental Europe was held at Basel, Switzerland. At this conference it was unanimously decided to introduce the 24-hour system as soon as possible. The German railway administration holds that the time of installing the new system is too great for the German state.

NEW GARAGE BURNED
A new garage at the rear of the Frank Recker home here, which was destroyed by fire, was started in the hay barn by a firecracker.

The garage was removed as automobile and by John Meyer from the site. The flames reached it and it was destroyed.

PHOTOGRAPHIC PLANES ARE ARMY'S "DEATH EYES"

DAYTON — (Special)—The "death eyes" of the United States army are a new terror to potential enemies.

Even that can see anything, eyes that record instantly and permanently their objects, eyes that bring death within their glare.

Secret researches by army engineers are making the eyes of the 22 photographic sections of the air service the most efficient and one of the most effective pieces of war machinery.

These sections are perhaps the most mobile units in the army. Should a national emergency arise these 22 sections could be equipped for action and on the move within 12 hours.

And here is how the eyes can bring death and destruction, as proved by recent tests.

A big gun was aimed at a concealed target six miles away. Army photographers in an airplane took pictures of the target as the shots hit. The films were dropped to the ground.

The air service developed them and in three minutes the big gun commander saw pictures and ordered the most effective pieces of war machinery.

In another test a photographic section plane flew to a given altitude directly above the target. The plane was above the range of the possible in my guns. Directly over the target it gave a signal. By triangulation the ground forces were able to complete the location exactly.

And now experiments are being made to devise a paper that will make pictures instantaneously.

From an airplane a picture will be taken the instant the first shot hits and a second later a photograph of the target dropped to the commander, enabling him, another second later, to send a true shot.

Each of the 22 sections consists of a commander, 21 men, two photographic airplanes and two trucks, carrying all equipment, including a developing room.

U. S. TO CONTROL WORLD'S LARGEST CABLE STATION
KETCHIKAN, Alaska—With the completion of a new cable between Seattle and Seward, Alaska, next fall by the United States army, Ketchikan will be one of the largest cable stations in the world, according to officials handling the laying of the line.

The first section of the new cable which links Seattle and Ketchikan was finished May 31 by the cableship Dillwood. The Dillwood then went to London to load cable for a second section which will connect Ketchikan and Seward.

Another link will link Ketchikan, Juneau, W. Anchorage, and Fairbanks with this city. Ketchikan will then be a relay office for four lines two going into southeastern Alaska and one to Seward and Seattle.

All these cables will be used commercially. The new cable will be equipped for daily operation, capable of carrying as much traffic as the old line from Seattle to Sitka.

LEMON. ROAST CHICKEN ON PRICE PAR IN RUSSIA
BERLIN—Roast chicken, eggs, black bread and cakes and other edibles produced locally, are reasonable in price in Russia, but when it comes to fruit, toilet articles, or anything else which has been imported, they usually are nearly twice their weight in gold, according to Dr. Wilbur K. Thomas of Philadelphia, executive secretary of the American Food and Sanitary commission.

Dr. Thomas recently completed an inspection trip of several weeks in Russian districts where the Quakers' organization is still assisting the inhabitants. At the inland stations on different routes he noted that an entire roast chicken not for appreciation, but for sale as a commodity, which had been imported, cost as much as the chicken.

FIRECRACKER ORDINANCE PROPOSED BY OFFICIALS
OTTAWA—Ordinance prohibiting the sale of firecrackers within a radius of the town of Ottawa will be passed here as a result of the Fourth of July demonstrations this year, according to Mayor William A. Baker.

Firecrackers were sold in Ottawa several weeks in advance of the Fourth of July. The ordinance will prohibit the sale of firecrackers within a radius of the town of Ottawa.

ROCKS STRUCK BY CONFERENCE

cooler heads of the party should be without avail.

Hopeful as they were that the outcome would be an agreement, the managers were taking no chances. The jealousies and animosities and suspicions of air long days of fighting were not easily put out of mind, and as tomorrow when it is thought the discussion of tonight may bring the matter nearer to a head.

"So far, the meeting has been good natured and temperate. Nothing concrete has been taken up tonight. The whole meeting so far has been preliminary to the meeting which will be held tomorrow afternoon, when it is expected some definite plan may be arrived at."

Leaving the conference ahead of the others, one of the participants said he felt little had been accomplished and that he felt disposed personally not to attend the proposed Sunday meeting.

"I feel that I have wasted about all the time I can afford of such a gathering," he added.

He explained that he would confer with others interested in the candidacy he represented before meeting finally whether he would attend the Sunday conference. He was one of three spokesmen for a candidate who had received a favorite son vote on every ballot.

Another participant, who likewise refused to allow himself to be quoted, described the results of the meeting as "slightly more than nothing, but not much more."

"It was about nothing plus," he said, and it was added that not a "single concrete suggestion" had been presented for consideration.

ROCKWELL'S STATEMENT
David Ladd Rockwell, chairman of the McAdoo for president committee, after the conference issued the following statement:

"Any suggestion that Mr. McAdoo had withdrawn or intends to withdraw from the race in which he is the outstanding candidate is unavailing. Such lies are obviously uttered for political effect. Mr. McAdoo will be nominated by this convention and elected by the people in November."

That the conference had accomplished little in the way of smoothing ruffled feelings was indicated by the suggestion of one of the participating members that "an indefinite adjournment of the convention" without a presidential nominee was a possibility facing the national assembly.

Each of the sixteen candidates whose names are now or have been before the convention was represented by one or more spokesmen. Chairman Hull of the national committee presided, sitting with him as advisors or directors of the conference were Senator Thomas J. Walsh, chairman of the convention, and Mrs. Emily Newell Blair, vice chairman of the national committee.

As the representatives approached the ante-room to the conference chamber they were required to identify themselves to the sergeant-at-arms of the convention and to state for whom they were to speak. Then they were ushered into the council room—the office of the national committee chairman.

DOORS GUARDED
Before the conference began city police took charge of the hallways leading to the conference chamber and a double guard of sergeants-at-arms was placed on the doors. Delegates and others not designated to participate were kept at a distance from the entrance, the police establishing a "dead line."

Chairman Hull was among the first of the arrivals. Two attendants made way for him thru the congested corridors. Representatives of candidates arrived singly or in groups. McAdoo and some others sent to the meeting places from two to half a dozen lieutenants, and these occupied rooms nearby, so as to be available for incidental conferences.

The various candidates remained at their respective headquarters, but were kept in constant touch with the proceedings by telephone and thus were able actively to direct their representatives in the discussion of the various ideas advanced in the early part of the afternoon.

Reference was made to the conference not under way the atmosphere was so oppressive that larger quarters were sought. The conferees, each packing his own chair, filed down the corridor to a larger chamber nearby. Up to the time of this move the formal discussion of the problem had not begun.

Altho the women delegates to the convention had sought representation in the meeting, none of the candidates selected a woman to speak for him. It was for this, among other reasons, that Mrs. Hull was invited to participate.

LIST OF SPEAKERS
Representatives of the candidates were announced officially as follows:

For Alfred E. Smith—Franklin D. Roosevelt, Norman E. Mack and J. H. Hoyer, New York, and J. H. Hoyer, of Brooklyn and George E. Brennan and Thomas Lynch, Illinois.

For William G. McAdoo—David Ladd Rockwell, Ohio; J. Bruce Kremer, Montana; Daniel C. Roper, North Carolina; Homer S. Hays, Jr., Connecticut; William L. O'Connor, Illinois; Arthur Mullen, Nebraska; and Thomas L. C. Chabourne, New York.

For Oscar W. Underwood—C. C. Carlin, Virginia; W. R. Pattengall, Maine; Walter Moore and Forney Johnston, Alabama; Robinson, Georgia; Joseph H. Robinson—Senator Thaddeus H. Caraway, Arkansas.

For Willard Saulsbury—Senator Thomas F. Barnard, Delaware.

For David F. Houston—Lewis G. Stevenson, Illinois; Francis G. Caffery and Earl Harding.

For Samuel M. Ralston—Thomas Taggart, Indiana.

For Jonathan M. Davis—Frederick Robertson, Kansas.

For Albert C. Ritchie—Howard Bruce and E. Brooks Lee, Maryland.

For Woodbridge N. Ferris—William A. Comstock, Michigan.

For James M. Cox—J. Henry Goetz and Charles E. Morris, Ohio.

For Charles W. Bryan—William Jennings Bryan, Florida, and T. Allen, Nebraska.

For Fred H. Brown—Robert Jackson, New Hampshire.

For George Silzer—James Kerney and Mayor Frank Hague, Jersey City, N. J.

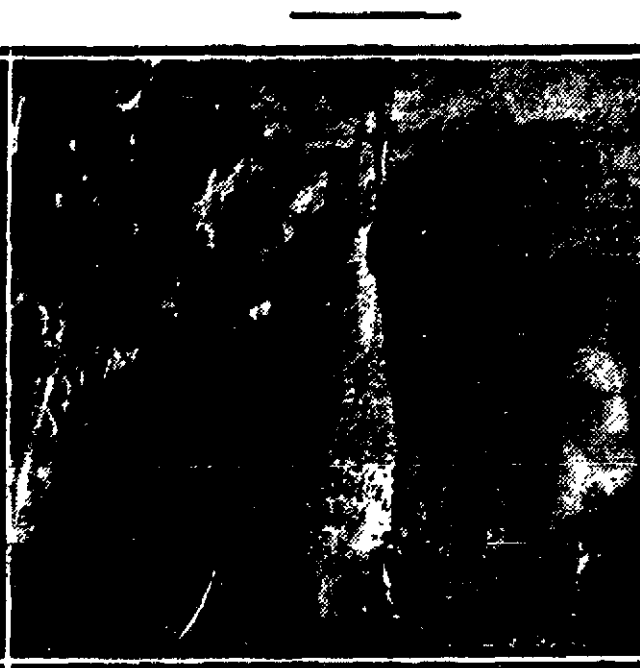

For Charles Glass—Senator Claude A. Swanson, H. F. Byrd, Virginia, and Henry C. Stuart.

For John W. Davis—C. L. Shaver, West Virginia.

Chairman Hull announced shortly after 1 a. m. when the conference finally adjourned, that it would reconvene at 4 p. m. Sunday. The interval would be spent by the representatives of the various candidates in discussions within their own ranks "in the light of what transpired here and what they already knew," Hull said.

Hull said there had been "no conclusion" tonight's meeting and there had been no suggestion or consideration of concrete proposals to end the deadlock "except of a general nature which I cannot disclose."

"CAVE WITHOUT ENDING"

Explorers have penetrated the famous Carlsbad Cavern at Carlsbad, N. M., for more than eight miles, without finding an outlet. The cavern consists of a series of connecting chambers, filled with a dazzling display of natural formations. Improvements now are being made which in time may permit an automobile to drive into the cave for a distance of two miles.

For Thomas F. Barnard, Delaware.

For David F. Houston—Lewis G. Stevenson, Illinois; Francis G. Caffery and Earl Harding.

For Samuel M. Ralston—Thomas Taggart, Indiana.

For Jonathan M. Davis—Frederick Robertson, Kansas.

For Albert C. Ritchie—Howard Bruce and E. Brooks Lee, Maryland.

For Woodbridge N. Ferris—William A. Comstock, Michigan.

For James M. Cox—J. Henry Goetz and Charles E. Morris, Ohio.

For Charles W. Bryan—William Jennings Bryan, Florida, and T. Allen, Nebraska.

For Fred H. Brown—Robert Jackson, New Hampshire.

For George Silzer—James Kerney and Mayor Frank Hague, Jersey City, N. J.

For Charles Glass—Senator Claude A. Swanson, H. F. Byrd, Virginia, and Henry C. Stuart.

For John W. Davis—C. L. Shaver, West Virginia.

Chairman Hull announced shortly after 1 a. m. when the conference finally adjourned, that it would reconvene at 4 p. m. Sunday. The interval would be spent by the representatives of the various candidates in discussions within their own ranks "in the light of what transpired here and what they already knew," Hull said.

Hull said there had been "no conclusion" tonight's meeting and there had been no suggestion or consideration of concrete proposals to end the deadlock "except of a general nature which I cannot disclose."

LOYAL TO CANDIDATES
The chairman said the representatives of the candidates had shown "proper loyalty to the candidates," but had also exhibited an earnest desire to cooperate in an effort to solve the problem.

The rule of secrecy had been imposed on the conference, he added, in order that there might be the fullest and freest expression of opinion. He said the meeting was designed to "get rid of as much brush as possible" in preparation for the meeting tomorrow after the candidates' representatives have conferred further with their chiefs.

The conference, Hull continued, had shown a "good spirit of indulgence in controversies about individuals."

Asked if he expected to have a definite plan to present to the convention when it reconvenes at 11 a. m. Monday, he replied:

"We hope so."

Rockwell, the McAdoo campaign manager, declared the representatives of the "minority" candidates would meet together before the general conference reconvened Sunday and that there might be a meeting of spokesmen for McAdoo and Smith.

GOOD FEELING
Rockwell said the preliminary conference had been "very helpful" and that there had been the utmost good feeling all around. He added that the situation in the convention had been a "very tense one" and that good was bound to come out of the conference.

Later it was learned that three separate conferences will be held Sunday in addition to the resumption of the general conference in the late afternoon.

The McAdoo and Smith leaders will meet separately and not jointly as had been understood by some, while the representatives of the various favorite sons will meet in a group.

After the conference broke up, the participants gathered in knots about the room for informal continuation of their discussion. In these gatherings, the old adhesion lines of the convention were observed.

William Jennings Bryan, David Ladd Rockwell, and J. Bruce Kremer of Montana, whispered to each other for several minutes in one part of the room, while in another corner George E. Brennan and Franklin D. Roosevelt, had their heads together.

That studied precautions had been made to prevent the story of the proceedings being prematurely leaked was indicated by the fact that one of the retiring members of the conference, that he could not tell in detail what had taken place.

"Under our agreement, I couldn't even tell you my name if I wanted to," he said.

SHARP HIT
The repeated announcements that all was pleasant among the faction leaders during the conference, it was learned that Senator Caraway of Arkansas, representing Senator Robinson of that state, engaged in a sharp tilt with William Jennings Bryan, who attended the meeting in behalf of the interests of his brother, Charles W. Bryan, governor of Nebraska.

Influential leaders from such states as Illinois and Ohio expressed the view privately and informally that some progress had been made in the meeting.

"The cordial temper of the gathering was significant and encouraging," said one.

"The ground is broken," said another.

Both gave credence to the view, however, that the meeting had not produced as much as a hint as to what specific plans might be offered at the Sunday session, at which the real work of the conferees must be accomplished.

"All conferees report progress," was the comment of one of the important figures after the adjournment.

It was observed that National Committeeman Mack of New York left the conference several minutes before the doors of the room were opened and the conclusion of the meeting formally announced. He was followed in a very few minutes by Mayor Hague of Jersey City, a Silzer backer.

Rockwell had been completely confident that the McAdoo faction would win when the preliminary conference was held. He was sure that the McAdoo faction would win when the preliminary conference was held. He was sure that the McAdoo faction would win when the preliminary conference was held.

MOTION FOR PARLEY
The convention gave its authority for the conferees by voting a formal motion directed to the principal campaign managers, who were to meet in a room adjoining the main hall of the convention, to discuss the possibility of a compromise.

Chairman Hull of the national committee, and Chairman Mack of the convention, were empowered by the motion to call the conferees, and to invite to the managers for all the candidates. With the category of those who later assembled in response to the invitation, party wheelwheers and new comers who have risen to places of prominence in the newer phases of Democratic politics; men from the solid south and the east and west; and those who could speak with authority for every element of the party.

CONVENTION HISTORY
While the peace discussions had their foundations in the conclusions reached at the consultation of leaders during the day's balloting, there lay back of that a chapter of convention history that gave the delegates a welcome diversion from the ham drum of the balloting, entrusted much to the ultimate outcome of the day's proceedings.

It revolved about the consolidation for the first time of the McAdoo strength, and its use to break up a number of parliamentary proposals that came formally before the convention from the ranks of the McAdoo followers.

The alignment was perfected under the leadership of Roosevelt, who brought together early in the session several of those actively in charge of favorite son bids, and laid before them a plan of cooperation which he believed would hasten the end of the deadlock. They agreed to it and had their trust afterward on the convention floor when the vote for Smith was brought beyond the number necessary for a veto and a string of resolutions brought forward by McAdoo delegates, including proposals to abolish the two-thirds rule and to adjourn the convention to meet elsewhere, were promptly voted down.

Smith was helped up the ladder mainly by the breaking up of the solid bloc of forty-eight Ohio votes that had been cast for Cox on the opening ballots and later switched to Smith when the vote was taken on the resolutions.

PIPES FOR GAS SUPPLY RAISED

Denial of Natural Product in Kansas Seen

PENDING ON SHALE NOW

Turns to Lime as Sand Wells Fail

NEOESHA, Kan. — (By Associated Press) — Natural gas wells and users of the product have felt apprehension over possible failure of sand gas wells, see in the development of shale gas industry hope that shale gas wells will be drilled for another generation longer the supply will be sufficient.

When the great natural gas wells in this section began to exhaust, oil men as well as the people saw the impending turn to other fuels. In 1923 shale gas wells began to be drilled. These men realized that at various places in the section there were small gas wells which had been producing for years since they were drilled. But the gas from these wells was wet. How to commercialize the product by finding a method of separating the water from the gas became the question.

A group of Neoeshan men organized to handle the new industry on a large scale. The company leased hundreds of acres of land in this vicinity and drilling operations were started. Wells were drilled with great success, the men asserted they entered little of the uncertainty in drilling for sand gas. In addition, they said, there are many small gas wells which will produce for a long time.

GERMAN WAR ORPHANS TO STUDY DOMESTIC SCIENCE

LANKWITZ, Germany — A special school has been built here to train girls between 14 and 16 years of age in domestic science and practical nursing. The school is especially for girls whose fathers were killed in the war and whose mothers also are dead or, if living, in such straitened circumstances that they cannot give their daughters the necessary attention and education.

A large hospital adjacent to the school will cooperate and here during the mornings the practical experience in housework, cooking and baking, washing, ironing, sewing, gardening, orcharding, truck farming and cattle raising will be gained. In the afternoons the girls will be instructed in civics, physiology, hygiene and other subjects.

Approximately 500 wells are being drilled in the U. S. and some of them are producing gas. The gas is used in the production of the gas. The gas is used in the production of the gas. The gas is used in the production of the gas.

ing a perfect mixture of water and gas. It is received into a standing separator, the gas going out of the top and the water returning to a connection at the bottom of the separator, thru a pipe line, thence into the big hole between the drive pipe and tubing. Chemical tests show that shale gas contains 98.3 per cent methane and ethane and practically no nitrogen or oxygen, which are noncombustible gases. The lime gas contains at 60 degrees Fahrenheit and at eight-pound pressure. 930 to 990 BTU's (British Thermal Units). This content is higher than that of many sand gases, which fact is pointed out as a basis for its value as a domestic or industrial fuel.

FAVOR REPEAL OF RAIL LAW

Provisions of Platform Adopted by Convention

FOR MARKET CORPORATION

Government Ownership of Railroads is Advocated

CLEVELAND — (By Associated Press) — A platform substantially the same as that favored by Senator La Follette of Wisconsin, was submitted Saturday to the Conference for Progressive Political Action by its resolutions committee.

The report made no reference to the Ku Klux Klan issue or prohibition.

Recommendations included: Repeal of the Esch-Cummins law; public ownership of railroads; restoration of the excess profits tax and lowering of excessive tariff duties and the creation of a government marketing corporation "to provide a direct route between the farmer and consumer."

Prompt ratification of the child labor amendment, election of all federal judges and abolition of injunctions in labor disputes, also legislation "to control the meat-packing industry" were advocated.

In separate resolutions the resolutions committee recommended immediate and complete independence for the Philippines and expressed sympathy "with the aspirations of the Irish people for freedom and independence."

The convention adopted the platform without debate.

TEXT OF PLATFORM

The text of the platform follows:

"For one hundred and forty-eight years the American people have been seeking to establish a government for the service of all and to prevent the establishment of a government for the mastery of the few. Free men of every generation must combat renewed efforts of organized forces and greed to destroy liberty. Every generation must wage a new war for freedom against new forces that seek thru new devices to enslave mankind."

"Under our representative democracy the people protect their liberties thru their public agents. The test of public officials and public policies alike must be: Will they serve, or will they exploit the common need?"

"The reactionary continues to put his faith in mastery for the solution of all problems. He seeks to have what he calls the 'strong men and best minds' rule and impose their decisions upon the masses of their weaker brethren."

"The progressive, on the contrary, contends for less autocracy and more democracy in government and for less power of privilege and greater obligations of service."

"Under the principle of ruthless individualism and competition, that government is deemed best which offers to the few the greatest chance of individual gain."

"Under the progressive principle of cooperation, that government is deemed best which offers to the many the highest level of average happiness and well-being."

LAW OF COMPENSATION

"It is our faith that we all go up or down together—that class gains are temporary delusions and that eternal laws of compensation make every man his brother's keeper."

"In that faith we present our program of public service:

"(1) The use of the power of the federal government to crush private monopoly, not to foster it."

"(2) Unqualified enforcement of the constitutional guarantee of freedom of speech, press and assembly."

"(3) Public ownership of the

THE BOYHOOD URGE PERSISTED!

When William Foss was a boy in Norway, his Viking blood induced a longing to go to sea as his father and grandfather and great-grandfather had done. But his parents brought him far into the interior of America. And he became a railroad man instead of a sailor. For years he was a switchman on the Rock Island line, retiring seven years ago. He kept on dreaming, tho, and began putting them into form with a knife and brush. Today his home is filled with models of full-rigged ships and paintings and carvings in ivory.

all federal judges without party designation for limited terms.

CHILD LABOR

"(12) Prompt ratification of the child labor amendment and subsequent enactment of a federal law to protect children in industry. Removal of legal discriminations against women by messages not prejudicial to legislation necessary for the protection of women and for the advancement of social welfare."

"(13) A deep waterway from the Great Lakes to the sea."

"(14) We denounce the mercenary system of degraded foreign policy under recent administrations in the interests of financial imperialism, oil monopolies and international bankers, which has at times degraded our state department from its high service as a strong and kindly intermediary of defenseless governments to a trading outpost for those interests and concession-seekers engaged in the exploitation of weaker nations, as contrary to the will of the American people, destructive of domestic development and provocative of war. We favor an active foreign policy to bring about a revision of the Versailles treaty in accordance with the terms of the armistice and to promote firm treaty agreements with all nations to outlaw wars, abolish conscription, drastically reduce land, air and naval armaments and guarantee public referendums on peace and war."

"In supporting this program, we are applying to the needs of today the fundamental principles of American democracy, opposing equally the dictatorship of plutocracy and the dictatorship of the proletariat."

"We appeal to all Americans without regard to partisan affiliation and we raise the standards of our faith so that all of like purpose may rally and march in this campaign under the banners of progressive union."

"The nation may grow rich in the vision of greed. The nation will grow great in the vision of service."

SEPARATE RESOLUTIONS

"(1) Resolved, that we favor the enactment of the postal salary adjustment measure for the employees of the postal service passed by the first session of the sixty-eighth congress and vetoed by President Coolidge."

"(2) Resolved, that we favor enforcement and extension of the merit system in the federal civil service to all its branches and transfer of the functions of the personnel classification board to the United States civil service commission."

"(3) Resolved, that we favor the immediate and complete independence of the Philippine Islands, in accordance with the pledges of the official representatives of the American people."

"(4) Resolved, that appropriate legislation be enacted which will provide for the people of the Virgin Islands, a more permanent form of civil government such as will enable them to retain their economic, industrial and political betterment."

"(5) Resolved, that we deeply sympathize with the aspirations of the Irish people for freedom and independence."

"(6) Resolved, that in the prevailing starvation in Germany, which, according to authoritative evidence, is beyond the scope of private charity, and in the event of like destitution in any other country, we consider it humane and just, and in conformity with our traditions and former practices, that the aid of our government should be extended in the form of the delivery of surplus food supplies to a reasonable amount, and upon such conditions as the emergency may justify."

"(7) Resolved, that we denounce every such use of the armed forces of the United States to aid in the exploitation of weaker nations, as has occurred all too frequently in our relations with Haiti, San Domingo, Nicaragua and other nations of Central and South America."

MEDAL FOR DOGS

SEATTLE, Wash. — Rambler and Joe, two bloodhounds that trailed a murderer to his death near Tacoma recently, have been awarded a gold medal for their efforts. The medal, bearing the names of the two dogs and the inscription "For Faithful Service," was given to Sheriff Matt Starwich, their owner, by Tacoma authorities.

REBATE ASKED

Suit for $254.54 in freight rebates, alleged to be due because of over-charges, was instituted in common pleas court Saturday by Joe Cousine, junk magnate, against the Pennsylvania railroad. Cousine recited that he shipped a car of steel to Cleveland. He was charged 110,000 lbs., he says, whereas the weight when weighed out at Cleveland was only 76,000.

Beginning Wednesday morning The Ohio Federation of Colored Women's Clubs will convene in St. Paul A. M. E. church, W. Springfield. Sessions will be held each morning, afternoon and evening of Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

Madames Kettie Foye and Nettie Weeks were called to Kanton last week on the account of the death of a relative, Pearl.

Mr. and Mrs. Wanda, nee Maud Cook and granddaughter, Irene, motored to Lima from Cincinnati, last week and were guests of Mrs. Reese.

Mr. and Mrs. Rollie Robinson left Wednesday for California to make their future home.

Miss Lovetta Stovall, Indianapolis, who appeared in song recital at the Second Baptist church last Monday, was the house guest of Mrs. Charles Mitchell, W. Elm-Springfield, last Tuesday evening.

The Daughters of Conference will postpone their meeting of Tuesday afternoon until the week following, July 15.

Mr. and Mrs. James Lowery and family, Rome-av., spent the Fourth in Ashland.

On Monday evening of last week a large gathering of the members of the Second Baptist church gave the Rev. Leroy Mitchell, their present pastor, a grand reception in honor of his long stay and success of the church. Songs, speeches and a dinner was enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Ware of Gary, Ind., were visitors over the Fourth, of Sargeant Stone and friends.

WAR INSURANCE BLANKS READY

L Legion Starts Bureau Monday at Safety Building
FINGER PRINTS NEEDED
Complete Records Necessary in Filing Papers

When the first World war veteran in Lima appears at the safety building Monday morning he will find everything in readiness for rushing thru his application for adjusted compensation.

A notary, clerks, stenographers and a police detective will be on hand to receive him.

His record will be taken and typed on an application blank. The length of service and amount of compensation or insurance will be calculated.

The application will be sworn to before a notary and the war veteran will be finger printed by Detective William Keller. The latter is for the purpose of making identification positive. Every man was finger printed on entry into service, and a comparison of his prints today with those on his service record in Washington will be the means of cutting red tape in cases where names are similar.

MONDAY FIRST DAY
Veterans whose names commence with the first initial of the alphabet are asked to apply on Monday. Records in possession of William Paul Gallagher Post show there are about 25 men in Lima whose names commence with that letter. Veterans whose names start with the letter "B" are to report Tuesday.

This number it is thought will be enough for the first day. Later it is hoped to take care of 100 men daily.

By having men apply according to letter, it is hoped to limit the number appearing each day so that everyone can be cared for, and not have to make more than one trip to the station.

Approximately 1,800 veterans in Lima and 3,500 in the county will be entitled to the benefits of the adjusted compensation act. The average soldier will receive a

RIVALS CLASH IN NATIONAL PASTIME AT LEAGUE PARK

Big Boxing Show All Arranged To Take Place At Orpheum Theatre Monday Night

DELPHOS PLAYS LIMA HERE THIS AFTERNOON

With the league season almost half gone, it is safe to say that the different teams making up the Ohio-Indiana league are just beginning to get their stride. With the league in full swing there is a noticeable fact and that is that the teams are evenly matched, that there isn't so much difference in the playing strength. There isn't a single team in the league that hasn't a good chance to win the pennant. There have been gains and losses. Wapakoneta has had a good team but seems to be possessed by considerable of a jinx. They have played five games and have lost four, but there have been games when the loss was wholly due to no fault of theirs, but rather to the luck of the draw. Every team has until July 15 to strengthen, after that date they will have to play thru to the end with the team they had at that date. Wapakoneta has just signed a young pitcher named Towell and in the game with Delphos, he showed more speed than any other in the league, and while he lacks experience, he would not have been plenty in the making. He serves his fast ball with a combination of curves and a fade-away that is sure to win many games before the end of the season.

It seems to have been a stroke of good luck, or judgment on the part of the directors of the league, in selecting the manager of Delphos and taking in Paulding. Here is a little bit that—no, it is an accepted expression—is baseball mad. This error has been added thru winning their first game against the league leader Bryan. They plan another tough customer today in Angola, and if they keep up their winning streak there will be no holding the fans in that part of the country. There is considerable friendly rivalry between Angola, Bryan, Delphos and Paulding and with the addition of the latter there is sure to be great times between this quartet before the season ends.

Lima suffered quite a loss when Manager H. L. Loeferman was taken to the hospital. But it is quite sure that he will replace him with another player equally as good at the earliest possible moment. Halloran is to be commended for the manner in which he has gotten into those things that means success to the league.

NEW PLAYERS EXPECTED
New players may be expected to fill out the weak spots in the Lima team at any time. Suffering a defeat at the hands of the New Bremen team has not been conducive to the fighting spirit of Halloran and he makes statement that if the present team isn't strong enough to cope successfully with its opponents, he will take the team over to Delphos. In Delphos, he has a strong adversary. To today's game. They have been making the strongest kind of ball game the last three starts, and it is certain that it will take every ounce of playing strength possessed by Lima to beat them. Tilton and Payne both have been making strong and winning games. No finer game of ball could be seen anywhere that the game between Wapakoneta and Lima independence day.

TILTON PITCHED STRONG
Tilton pitched a splendid game of ball against Towell, got out of tight places in a masterly manner and showed that he is pitching much stronger game than any other time in his career. Towell will probably be on the mound for Delphos in the game today, and he is showing form that has quite upset the opinions of the wise ones. Another thing is that the team is hitting hard and timely. They didn't find Towell easy, but they hit him and that is what counts the most.

Lima is smarting just a little from their defeat at the hands of New Bremen, and it was a hard game to lose. But it shows that to win games all of the teams have got to play fast baseball. It should be a game well worth seeing between these old time rivals. Delphos will bring with them a large crowd of rovers, and Lima will be as strong for winning the game as they ever were. It is sure to be one of these typical contests that the baseball fan glories in.

Move to further strengthen the Lima baseball team has been made with the signing up of Harold Bible, local boy, to play the outfield Sunday afternoon in the Ohio-Indiana league game with Delphos.

Bible will likely play center field in the place of Costello, who injured his right ankle while sliding into second base at New Bremen Friday. It is likely Costello is able to play his regular position against Delphos, in that case Bible will be sent to the outfield, replacing Fish, who may pitch against the Canal City aggregation. If Fish does not go to the mound, Halloran will use Fitzpatrick, who put up a fairly good brand of pitching against New Bremen when he relieved Main in the seventh. Main will be on the bench indefinitely with a sore arm which has affected his pitching lately. He will be in uniform, however, in case he may be needed.

With the exception of the changes named, Lima will use the same lineup against Delphos that they used against New Bremen. Egan will play in right field, his regular position; Skyles will be on first; Galbreath at second; Wise at short; and Malloy at third. Canton, of Dayton, will catch. If he repeats Sunday his performance against New Bremen, Lima fans will certainly be well pleased over the new acquisition of the local club.

Payne will probably be the hurling selection for Delphos. He lost a pitcher's battle to Poebbleman, of New Bremen, at New Bremen last Sunday by a 1 to 0 score, but in that defeat he pitched one of the best games of his career.

Ohio Powers Move Up In Race

Saturday's Results
Delphos, 7; Polina, 6.
Only game played—others postponed.

By winning over the Police at Murphy's park in the only industrial league game played Saturday, the Ohio Power team moved a notch closer to first place in the league standing. The score was 7 to 6.

Ohio Power jumped on Hogan, Police hurler, for four runs in the first inning. The Police scored three in the second and when the fifth inning was completed the two teams were tied at 6 each. Ohio Power scored the deciding count in the eighth.

Monday—B. & O. vs. Loco Maintenance at Loco field.
Tuesday—Loco Engineering vs. Catapult at Loco field.
Wednesday—Nickel Plate vs. Loco Pattern at Fairport park.

As the result of winning the postponed game with the Garford last Wednesday, the B. & O. team is leading the Industrial Twilight league with three wins and no defeats. Loco Maintenance, which lost to Loco Engineering, and the West End Triangles, are tied for second place with three wins and a defeat each.

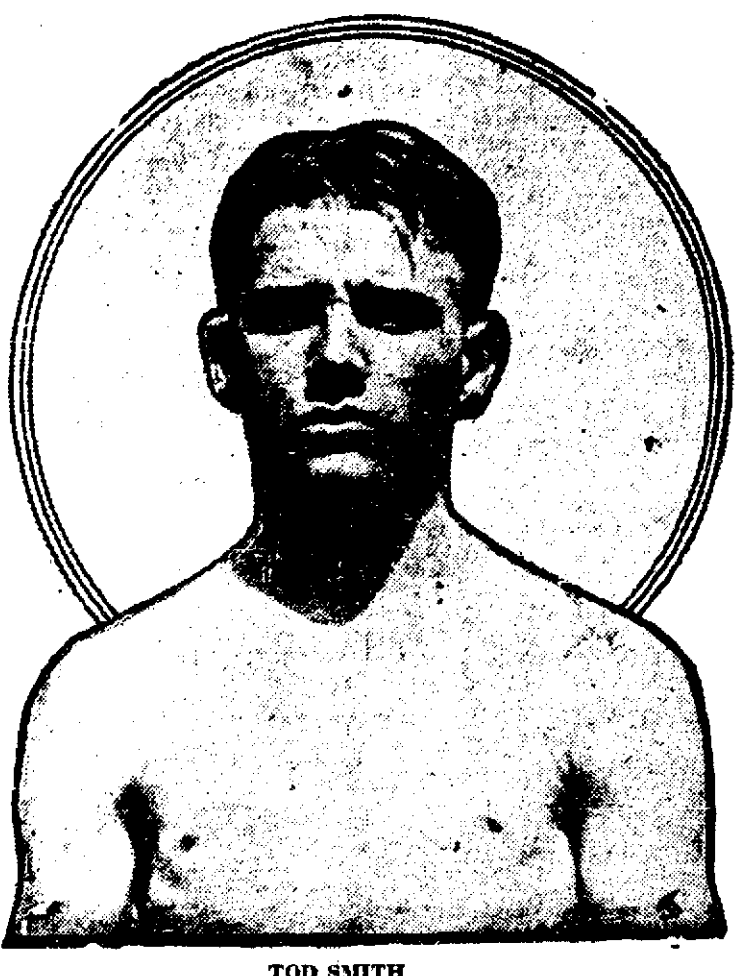

Protested game of two weeks ago between the Loco Pattern and the Lima Telephone Co. and the two postponed games of last week will be played off in the near future, according to Victor Bird, Y. M. C. A. industrial secretary.

Feature game this week should be that on Monday evening between the Garford and the Loco Maintenance at Loco field. Intense rivalry has cropped up between these two teams and a real game should result. A win for the Garford will put that team ahead of the Maintenance in the league race.

SENATORS SPURT BIG THRILL
The sensational spurt of the Washington Nationals has been the big thrill of the American league during the past six weeks. From a second division berth the team came to the front with a rush. With the season half over it has surprised the baseball world by taking the lead in the American league.

This was accomplished by taking four straight games from the New York Yankees, a rare happening with the three-time pennant winners.

CANTON LIGHTWEIGHT WHO WILL BOX JACKIE GROSS

TOD SMITH

Smith goes into his battle with Gross confident that he can finish him by a kayo. The Canton boy possesses a left that has won most of his fights. He is particularly clever and uses it with rapid punches, which generally worries his opponent. It is very likely that he will begin this bout with the same tactics he has been using in practically all those bouts where he has been judged the winner. He also packs a hard wallop with his right. With his jabbing tactics, he generally wears his man down and then goes in and puts the finishing touches on with hard swings to the jaw or stomach.

AS A MATTER OF FACT

Being a Criticism of the Just and the Unjust in the World of Professional and Amateur Sports
BY HAROLD GARDNER

Since Brooklyn team won't or don't care to win games from the Giants, they have been having nice, sort, juicy picking with the eastern contingent. Dazzy Vance is the only twirler in the camp of the Robins that has won a game in the series just passed, and he lost three precious contests he pitched previously. Figuring the double header July Fourth, the Giants have five games in all to play Fletcher's careworn ball tossers. This should be another occasion for rejoicing, so far as McGraw's clan is concerned. They leave for the wild and woolly west Tuesday, dropping off at St. Louis for an argument covering a four day period. Will they fare as bad as they did on their first western trip. They might, for it is certain that the Cardinals are considerably tougher than among the set-ups of the east. The Cardinals drubbed them frightfully hard, on their first visit, took four successive games from them. That was a shiner in mourning for sure. Win or lose in St. Louis they trek

ON TO PITTSBURGH

Now be it said truthfully that the Pirates are in a murderous mood. They have been slaying without quarter, and while they did get two out of three on the last visit, the Giants know what to expect, at least they look for anything but mercy. They have four games to play in Pittsburgh. The Giants will close their western fling at Cincinnati on July 23, and after that on their way back to their own ballfield. Cincinnati is not playing their kind of ball at all, so the outcome of these games is speculative and nothing else. It is conceded that the Reds are a strong team in all departments, and the cause for their miserable showing in the past couple of weeks is beyond comprehension.

A LOYAL FAN REPLIES

I am glad that some notice has been taken of my comments regarding rowdism at ball games. Here is a letter to the Sports Editor which is given verbatim:
Dear Sir:
Having read your little comment under the heading of Rowdism at Ball Games, would like to say just this. As an unprejudiced, ardent fan, I think this is all an aftermath of what happened at Murphy's park, June 27th (the probably means June 29, there was no game June 27) Fish was pitching and hunching up from the mound about one foot.
A certain ardent fan kept yelling at the top of his voice, "quit hunching Fish," and repeated until Fish did stop.
Now if this is true sportsmanship for a pitcher to do that on his home grounds, deliver the ball, and then hunch up, now in conclusion, if this "unhunching" as you call him, probably just because he sat in the bleachers, did say something that wouldn't sound good in high society, he probably meant it as good as the fan who was disgusted with Fish's unsportsmanlike tactics.
We hope neither will happen again, or the writer of this may be one of those ejected from the bleachers.
(Signed)
A LOYAL FAN.

There is a whole lot of sound logic in the comments of A Loyal Fan. It is certain that a ball player has no more right to use unsportsmanlike tactics than any one else. It might be well to call the attention of the umpire to illegal delivery. League umpires have their instructions on this rule. But here is the point, two wrongs never make a right, and I am certain A Loyal Fan will agree with me. The point he makes regarding the voice from the bleachers, is wholly misunderstood. There are just as many of these self asserted comedians sitting in the grand stand as there is on the bleachers. The point is that I am sure, they will never be missed wherever they sit. A majority of the real fans who attend games at Murphy's grounds would be much better satisfied if they sat on their old arm chair at home.

OLD-TIME OLYMPIC HEROES NO. 4

Because of his matchless capacity for coining new and original phrases, Scoops Bromide was awarded the split infinitive championship at the St. Louis Olympic games in 1904.

By a whimsical turn of fate it was in this very city, too, that Scoops scored his first notable feat. The boarding house keeper explained to court authorities that Scoops had such an honest looking pan that she even advanced him money. All told, the bill he beat amounted to $38.40, laundry included.

Scoops was a bang-up all-round man. On some occasions he was even more banged up than usual. Scoops used to do police on the morning bugle, and it is said that he did 'em for plenty. Scoops was the first $18-a-week reporter to refer to a bullet as a "steel jacketed messenger of death."

This line attracted the eagle eye of the great Horace Greeley, who called Scoops to his office and delivered the now immortal vacation hint. "Go west, young man, and blow up with the McAdoo boom."

Three days later it was discovered that Scoops had misheard Mr. Greeley and had gone south with the office safe.

Scoops went unutterably, as was his wont, from terrible to worse. When his degeneration was complete he took to writing sports, and in his own illiterate, untrained way promptly became a national authority.

Scoops claims to be the first expert to take a baseball forecast with this phrase, "to a man up a tree it looks—etc."

This sounds entirely probable. Scoops was up a lot of trees in his day. "Even when I was a kid I was afraid of pink camels," he often said.

SQUARED CIRCLE

COLUMBUS — Ted Moore, European middleweight champion arrived Saturday for his 12 round decision bout with Bryan Downey here Monday night.

Moore worked out before a large crowd late Saturday, being picked by the wise ones to outpoint Downey in their bout. Downey is expected to arrive from Cleveland today.

Tommy Herman, Dayton kayo king who knocked out Young Webb last week in two rounds has been matched with Nel Coogan, New York light-weight for a twelve round decision bout at Northside field Dayton, Friday night.

Herman, who has the fans agog over the way he knocks 'em dead will be up against one of the best light-weights in the country in facing Coogan. It will be a severe test for Herman, but the local knockout artist is confident that he will add Coogan to his rapidly growing list of knockout victims.

Champ Not To Box Again This Year
NEW YORK — Definite announcement that Jack Dempsey will not enter the ring this year in defense of his title was made Saturday by Promoter Tex Rickard after a series of conferences with Jack Kearns, the champion's manager. Rickard's pronouncement confirms reports circulated concerning the titleholder's plans since the promoter signed Harry Wills, New Orleans negro heavyweight and Luis Angel Firpo, South American champion sprinter, to box in his Jersey City bout August 30.

In making the announcement Rickard said he spoke with Kearns' sanction and explained that conditions are unfavorable for a heavyweight title bout before 1925. Rickard added that Dempsey would not defend his crown before late or early next June.

The winner of the Firpo-Wills battle will be matched with Dempsey in June 1925, according to present plans, he stated.

Concerning the reasons for keeping Dempsey on the shelf for another year, Rickard said: "I expect to hold the Wills-Firpo bout on August 30 or a date about that time. Dempsey will be busy with moving picture work. Kearns has informed me, until some time in August, it would be unreasonable to ask Dempsey to prepare himself for the defense of his title in a few weeks time. By the same token it would be impossible for Firpo or Wills, after a hard struggle as late as August 30, to resume training immediately for a contest that could not safely be scheduled later than the second week of September."

LIGHTWEIGHT BATTLE AT ORPHENM MONDAY

Main Go. Jake Gross, Lima, vs. Ted Smith, Canton, 12 rounds at 125 pounds.
Second Main Go. Don Bowsher, Lima, vs. Bomber Myers, Massillon, 12 rounds at 175 pounds.
Semi-final. Paddy Phalen, vs. Young Keller, Lima 6 rounds at 140 pounds.
Four round opener.
Time Monday evening.
Place—The Orpheum Theatre. Time—8:15 p. m.

REFEREE CHARLEY MAXWELL

Jakie Gross and Don Bowsher, Lima's two star battlers, drew cuts last night to see which would box in the last card at the Orpheum Theatre Monday night and Gross proved to be the lucky or unlucky one and drew the last bout of the double windup. "Suits me," Don stated after the drawing. "I will be dressed and home before Jake gets out of the theatre."

Gross appears in splendid condition for the grueling twelve round battle he is sure to encounter Monday night altho his boxing has not quite satisfied his handlers. He has been handicapped by lack of small, fast sparring partners and his backers are afraid that he may not show up so well in the early rounds against the dazzling speed of the Canton lightweight. "But strength and hitting power should tell in the end." "I am going to send Gross in with everything he has from the first go." Earl Smith, Gross' manager declared in an interview last night.

If Gross follows the plan of battle laid down by his manager, and the fans believe that he will, then local fight followers are sure to see one of the greatest fights ever staged in a Lima ring. For Ted Smith, with his great left hand and well developed defense will be sure to inflict a lot of damage on any boxer who makes a rushing aggressive fight against him.

Smith has declared that he is confident of winning by a knockout and the Gross plan of battle will give him plenty of opportunities to land the sleep producing punch. It is quite likely that Smith will endeavor to wear Gross down with his rapier like lefts in the early rounds and then go for a knockout after Gross is sufficiently weakened to lose much of his dangerous punch.

MYERS-BOWSHER
The other half of the double windup should end in a knockout before the twelve rounds are ended but it is hard for the fans to figure whether Myers or Bowsher will be on the receiving end of the finishing punch. The local light heavy has been idle for several months and the experts are at a loss to figure just how good he will be. If Bowsher should display the same form he did here in his several ring appearances he stands to beat the Massillon manner, but if his long lay off has slowed him down the least bit he is in for a bad evening. Myers

HUSSEY WON'T START
Frank Hussey, the New York school boy member of the Olympic team, will not be a starter in the 100-meter preliminaries at Paris, July 6, according to Lawson Robertson, team coach. Loren Murchison gets the place on account of his greater experience.

NEW YORK—The New York State boxing commission has told Jimmy Johnston he can't hold his Gene Tunney-Georges Carpentier fight on July 22, as he had planned, because it would interfere with dates already arranged by other clubs. They told him he might hold the affair on the 24th but Jimmy is inclined to argue and he and the commission will fight it out at the latter's next meeting on Tuesday.

NEW YORK—Sid Terris won a fast ten-round bout from Paul Fritsch, the French lightweight, at Henderson Bowl in Brooklyn. In the semi-final, Frankie Ash, the English flyweight, fought a draw with Corporal Izzy Schwartz.

NEW YORK—Georges Carpentier and Gene Tunney will meet in a 15-round bout for the American light-heavyweight title at the Polo Grounds on July 22, Jimmy Johnston, the matchmaker, announced.

GIANTS STILL HOLD FIRM GRIP IN RACE FOR PENNANT

Predicted Blowup Of Washington Team Proves Fallacy; Still Leading In League Race

ED PITCHERS MARKS FOR PIRATE WAR CLUBS

There has been little change in the National league during the past week. The Giants still retain a lead of better than four games and they have been winning steadily. With this, however, it must be remembered the Giants have perhaps the weakest teams in the league to contend with, with the probable exception of St. Louis, who has fallen down miserably, and it can be expected they will have to fight much harder when they break at Coogan's Bluff for the wild and woolly west next day.

Western teams have been in it out with but little change. The Chicago who came home the east with a remarkable lead just about held their position against Pittsburgh and Cincinnati. The former team is the one that took an unexpected spurt was the particular reason for the Pirates' back in the lead. And again the incoherence of baseball was never illustrated than when they won two games in one day to Cincinnati, who in turn were easily won in their series by the Cubs. "Never can tell," is a true statement saying as far as baseball is concerned, and that is what makes the game so interesting.

Reds have not been playing nearly up to their form. For a reason is hard to understand. Independence Day they won from the fast going Pirates and then lost Saturday. It is a joint loss somewhere. Their pitching ace, in the two games he has been in, has shown form that equalled him he did last season. This is a boost to the Reds. Their game seems to be lost. There is not the old "Lester" that characterized their last season. They are hitting well, but gaining no advantage. The game with Pittsburgh day, they were not so much as their batting spells and Cincinnati could not hold them.

TSRUGH—The Pirates' batting was up to an 11 to 4 victory in the first game. They were out from the box in the fourth after they hit a home run. The game was a close one. The Pirates' batting was effective in the sixth. The score: Pirates, 11; Reds, 4.

Kate Hal Won Feature At Randall

NORTH RANDALL, CLEVELAND — (Associated Press) — Outperforming Hal Mahone in the two fastest miles paced this season, Kate Hal, owned by Ed Jackson, Toronto, won the free-for-all pace feature of the Getaway Grand Circuit card here. The mare got away on top in both miles and was never headed, staying off Marvin Childs' Omaha owned gelding's challenge in the stretch to win the first heat in 2:02 2-5, and the next a second faster.

Hal Mahone was the only one of the field which could get close to the mare and was only beaten by a neck in the two miles. With Kate Hal ruled out in the consolation, Hal Mahone took that mile easily in 2:04 3-5.

The time for the race also made the fastest three heats paced. Kate Hal paced the last quarter in the first heat in 29 seconds. Her fractional time for the second was 1:00 3-5; 1:01 1-2; 1:02 3-5; 1:03 3-5; 1:04 3-5; 1:05 3-5; 1:06 3-5; 1:07 3-5; 1:08 3-5; 1:09 3-5; 1:10 3-5; 1:11 3-5; 1:12 3-5; 1:13 3-5; 1:14 3-5; 1:15 3-5; 1:16 3-5; NEW CARBON ELIMINATION PROCESS TESTED

WATER METHOD IS USED

Steam Formed by Combustion Removes Carbon

INVENTION IS HELPFUL

Annual Savings in Repairs to Be Considerable

Carbon may no longer trouble motorists if an invention that condenses the water formed by the combustion of gases in an automobile engine and returns it to the motor in the form of steam proves successful in actual tests, Lima automobile dealers have been informed.

Steam has long been used to dissolve carbon from cylinders and numerous inventors have attempted to inject a small amount of steam into the intake manifold in an effort to prevent carbon formations. This new system is different, however, as it uses not an outside supply of water but that formed by the combustion of the gasoline in the motor.

Most motorists do not realize that a large amount of water is formed by the combination of gasoline and air as an explosive mixture. Oxygen in the air and hydrogen in the gasoline are combined by the electric spark and water is formed.

In the past the water formed has gone away in the exhaust or has shipped downward past the piston rings into the crank case. This will explain to motorists who have often wondered why water should be found in the crank case just why it happened.

TRoubles Over

Now, however, the water will be distilled and returned to the motor in the form of steam and, no claims by the inventors, troubles from carbon will all be over.

Another use of the water has been mentioned by those interested in the development of aviation. Flight of lighter than air vehicles will be aided immeasurably by the invention, it is claimed.

Heretofore, one of the most serious problems in connection with airships, and especially "dirigibles," has been that occasioned by the great reduction in load as the gasoline was consumed.

One of the large rigid dirigibles now being made carries as much as 5,000 gallons of gasoline; this is about 40,000 pounds of weight, which the ship has when it leaves the ground.

Nearing the end of the journey, it is that much lighter and in order to bring it to the ground, it is sometimes necessary to let out large quantities of expensive hydrogen or helium, and generally at a place where it cannot be replaced.

Experiments are now being made to offset this variation of load by utilizing the weight of water condensed in the motor to compensate for gasoline consumed.

Two tanks are used—one for gasoline, the other for water. At starting, the water tank is empty and gasoline tank full. As the gasoline is used, water which is generated in the motor is precipitated into the other tank, thus maintaining constant weight and balance.

This serves another valuable service; in the event any compartment of the dirigible should spring a leak and lose gas, ballast in the form of water can be dropped and thereby maintain the buoyancy of the ship to the extent of several tons.

SELECT USED CARS WITH MUCH CARE, IS WARNING

A used car should be looked over with extreme care, checked up and tested thoroughly before being bought.

There are now and then non-descript sellers who wait for just such persons who are lax in this safeguard. They doctor up the car so that it "runs like new" while undergoing test. And it breaks down shortly after purchase.

Some of the tricks used are: Running the car on soft tires, to hide rattles and hard springs; covering up engine bearing knocks by chemically treating the crankcase oil so it has the consistency of muck.

Quitting defective transmission or rear end with standard or powder cork packing.

Injecting acid into a nearly dead storage battery.

WOMAN'S SENTENCE TO BE TESTED IN COURT

COLUMBUS — Judge C. T. Marshall, chief justice of the supreme court, Saturday issued a writ of error to permit the testing in the federal court of the constitutionality of the Ohio law providing for incarcerating women convicted of a misdemeanor in the state reformatory.

Several weeks ago Ida Fenwick, a resident of Indiana, was indicted in Darke co. for shooting with intent to kill. She was convicted in common pleas court of a assault and battery. The court imposed a fine of $200 and sentenced her to six months in the reformatory. She attacked the constitutionality of the law on the ground it is discriminatory in that it permits a heavier maximum penalty for women convicted of a misdemeanor than can be imposed on men convicted of the same offense. She lost in the court of appeals and supreme court.

"COMFORTS" IN ENGLAND

Ballroom tires are called comfort tires in England. But they are not widely used. Only some of the larger cars have adopted them and then only as optional equipment.

NO AUTOS ALLOWED

Iceland has closed its ports against importation of autos and other commodities for two years. The intention is to force Icelanders to revert to the simple life, causing thrift to raise the depreciated value of the currency.

SALES SAFEGUARDED

According to a new law in Canada, automobiles may be sold only by legally authorized dealer who can furnish a bond protecting the buyers if the autos sold happen to be stolen cars. It is expected auto-stealing will be reduced considerably.

INTERNATIONAL SHOW

The German Automobile Dealers' Association, in cooperation with the Allgemeinen Deutschen Automobil Club in Munich, is planning to hold the first post-war international exhibition during February or March, 1925. It has also been proposed by the same association that an international automobile race be run during May, 1925, both events to be held in Leipzig.

UNIFORM AUTO LAWS NEEDED

Motorists Confused by Many Different Codes

With the summer touring season at hand and nearly every state, city and town preparing to boost summer trade by catering to the tourist it is time that some logical program was followed to keep the tourist posted as to the laws in effect in certain territories, according to F. E. Bradfield, vice president of a well-known motor company.

For years, Bradfield asserts, the various states have been talking about uniform traffic laws but 1924 finds this situation just as much of a question as heretofore. Bradfield suggests a few simple things that automobile dealers state officials and municipal officials can do to make the "road easier" for tourists. He believes that:

1.—The state should erect a signboard at the state boundary line on every main highway, giving a brief digest of state laws tourists should know. Maryland is already doing this with great success, he says.

2.—Every town should post a brief survey also right of way rules and speed limits several miles out of each community and again on entering the town.

3.—Automobile dealers should also quote the laws in effect in their communities by means of sign boards, printed signs in their salesrooms and at the gasoline stations. Every garage and gasoline station should help perfect this system, he says, and these things would all tend to stop traffic violations.

HIGHWAYS STUDIED

Governor of five states, welcomed on behalf of their respective commonwealths, the thirty delegates from Latin American countries who during June, are to make a field study of highways and highway transportation in the United States as guests of the Highway Education Board.

BRAKE LAWS LAX

An utter laxity of brake control has been discovered in the laws covering proper use and care of this important part of the auto. finds the legislative committee of the American Automobile Association. Connecticut is the only state that has a definite requirement about brake performance, says Thomas P. Henry, president.

AUTO LAWS

The automobile has been productive of more municipal legislation of late than any other object. New York now requires that all drivers undergo an examination of their ability at the wheel. Across country, San Francisco has a city ordinance preventing "jay walking."

Ford Style Is Making Record For Ton Truck

Screen sides and canopy tops are now being supplied by the Ford Motor Co. as additional equipment for the new Ford one-ton truck equipped with all-steel body and cab.

Since its introduction a few months ago, the new Ford hauling unit has steadily gained in popularity among truck users throughout the country. With the addition of screen sides and canopy top, the use to which it may be adapted become wider than ever, including practically every delivery service demand.

The screen sides, which are of heavy mesh in strong frames, are securely bolted to the cab and body. The top is covered with weather-proof material, similar material being used for side and end curtains which are rolled up and held in place by straps when not in use.

The end doors form a feature which appeals to many, for they are completely inclosure and protection of the load. The doors are swung on sturdy hinges and are held close with a double locking device which may be padlocked.

With the screen sides and top the truck has a loading space of approximately 114 cubic feet. The body is four feet wide, seven feet two inches long, and has a loading height of four feet.

STATE-WIDE DRIVE FOR RELIEF FUNDS PLANNED

COLUMBUS — Plans practically complete for a systematic state-wide solicitation for funds for Lorain relief, Fred A. Miller, Columbus chairman of the relief commission, said in a statement issued Saturday.

According to Miller, the commission plans to use organizations of civic, fraternal, religious, labor, commercial, and industrial activities as soliciting agencies. The emergency requires heavy popular subscriptions as well as large contributions from corporations and well-to-do. Miller said: "We expect our organization to be so complete as to result in practically a state-wide personal solicitation. We have absolutely no misgivings about Ohio's enthusiastic willingness and ability to put Lorain and the entire disaster area back on its feet," he added.

AUTO COST 8 BILLION

Annual automobile cost of this country, excluding taxes and interest, is about $8,000,000,000, estimate the officials. Of this, the largest item is depreciation, which is figured at $1,800,000,000.

SAFETY ESSAYS

One of the essays submitted to the Highway Education Board in a contest on "Highway Safety Habits I Should Learn," was written by an 11-year old boy in the Council School, Alaska. The school is located on the Seward Peninsula beyond Nome, one of the most northerly points in the world.

RENT-A-CAR CO. MAKING RAPID GROWTH IN LIMA

The Bush Rent-A-Car Co. is showing a rapid growth in Lima, necessitating the purchase of several new Fords since starting business six months ago. A. F. Bush, manager, states. A number of gear shift cars will be added to the present fleet of Fords within a week or two, he says.

Local motorists are supporting a rent-a-car business that many larger cities have made a failure of, he continued.

Bush Rent-A-Car Co. is centrally located with garage space for twenty-five cars. At present fifteen cars are being operated, he states, saying he expects to increase the number to full capacity in six months.

MANY EXPLOSIONS

The average automobile engine turns over at least 1200 times per minute. With each turnover making an average of three to four explosions in the cylinders, it will be seen that a car engine fires more than 300,000 times an hour compared with 2600 ticks of a watch in the same period.

RESTRICTIONS WANTED

After a week's trial of the plan to do away with all parking regulations, Akron, O., is returning to its old form of limiting parking downtown, except for a few minor changes. Motorists called for the return to restrictions.

By HOPE HOLLISTER

THERE are very few social gatherings arranged for the coming week. As usual, following the observance and celebration of the Fourth of July, society members are eager for a little rest from their social duties. It is perhaps the annual lull experienced in the parties at the city club and at home. There are, however, several important weddings arranged for the week.

Mrs. Maud Mathews will become the bride of Harry L. Neuman, Monday evening at 6:30 o'clock at the home of Mr. Mrs. Julius Solomon, 336 S. Jameson-av. Little Miss Let Louise Solomon and Julius Solomon, Jr., will at the bridal couple. A wedding dinner at the Hotel Norwill follow the marriage ceremony at which Rabbi Harry Marshall of Paducah, Ky., will officiate. Margolis will also officiate at the wedding of Miss Ethel, daughter of Miss L. L. L. 113 S. Metcalf-st. and Nelson, of Ft. Wayne, Ind., at noon at the Elks home. A dinner at the Elks' home for immediate relatives and friends will be held following the ceremony.

Winona Neuman, daughter of Mrs. A. D. Neuman, will become the bride of Dr. S. Oliver of Cincinnati, at a service at the Neuman home, 1 Washington-st., Saturday noon at one o'clock. Rev. L. Heucker, pastor of the First Street Presbyterian church, will perform the ceremony. Miss Neuman, sister of the late Joseph Robertson, of whom will attend the bride.

A wedding at the Hotel Barr will be held for Belle Stoffer, W. Market-st., her brother, Charles Sumner, as their guests over Mr. and Mrs. Calvin and children, Kathleen Russell, Mr. Charles Severn, Charles, Jr., all of Mt.

H. Hoffman, N. McDonald, has returned from Sand Oak Harbor, where he spent a week with friends.

Mr. Hoffman of Detroit, is in the week-end with his Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Hoffman, N. McDonald, H. H. and son, Waldo, also of Detroit, accompanied him here week-end.

and Mrs. Col. Shuter, E. Kent-st. had as their guests the past week, Mr. and Mrs. E. Lenox of Detroit. At a reception at the home of Mrs. E. Lenox, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. of Phoenix, Arizona, and evening Wm. F. Numan, W. Market-st., entertained at dinner, complimentary out-of-town guests.

Rose Turk, 707 Faurot-av., entertained the members of the club at her home, Wednesday noon. Contexts and games were served by the hostess.

A number of piano pupils of Madame Horsch will give a recital Sunday evening at eight o'clock at the Fisk-Pursell Music House, 210 N. Elizabeth-st. The following program will be given:

Eastern Intermezzo, Nella Pursell and James Keller. Barcarolle and Galloping Horses, Richard Miller. Knight Rupert and Evening, Dorton Holmes. Consuela, Alleen Carpenter.

Sunset and March, Mary Mackenzie. In Hanging Gardens and Gipsy Dance, Jean Welty.

"A Midsummer Night's Dream" To Be Again Presented at City Park Friday

Talented Lima Artists Highly Praised After Initial Debut Last Month

BECAUSE of the hundreds of requests received for a third presentation of Shakespeare's "The Midsummer Night's Dream," under the auspices of the Lima Federation of Women's clubs, the production will be given at the City Park, Friday evening, July the eleventh. This charming open-air play was given on June 25 and 26 and received much praise and complimentary criticism.

The parts will be taken by the same group of talented artists, save for the part of the "Singing Fairy," which will be taken by Mrs. Pauline Wenner Gooding, who was originally supposed to take the part. Mrs. Gooding was out of the city at the time of the presentation and her part was most admirably taken by Mrs. Geraldine Kah Thomas. Mrs. Gooding is a very prominent soloist of the city and will be very lovely in the part.

The production will start at 7:30 o'clock and in the event of unfavorable weather, will be given on the first clear night. Mrs. William Daniels is chairman of the Fine Arts division of the federation, under whose auspices the play is being staged.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Wright, S. Cole-st. entertained informally at dinner at the Shawnee Country club, Thursday evening, complimenting Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lindsey of Chicago, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Seward Folsom, S. Rosevelt-av.

Places were marked for Mr. and Mrs. Lindsey and children, Margaret and Walter, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Seward Folsom and son, Thomas Knox, and Mr. and Mrs. Wright and son, George Thomas.

Miss Catherine Burba, N. Baxter-st., is the guest of the Misses Burba of Dayton.

Members of the Kings' Daughters of the First Reformed church will meet in the parish house, Tuesday evening at eight o'clock.

Mrs. Fred Smith, 219 Flanders-av., will welcome the members of the Ponsetta Euchre club to her home, Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Elgood Lufkins, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. F. W. Drake, Lakewood-av., left Thursday for a visit with friends in Buffalo, N. Y., before returning to her home in Rye, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Logan entertained a number of friends at dinner at their home in Columbus Grove on July the Fourth. Covers were laid for Mr. and Mrs. J. M. McComb, Mr. and Mrs. Carl H. Logan and family, Mrs. Emma L. Deets, all of this city, Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Logan of Botkins, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Wood and Mr. Robert Turner of Columbus Grove.

Members of the Willing Workers class of the First Christian church will hold a picnic at Lincoln Park, Tuesday evening. Families and friends of the members are invited.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Good, Marion-av. and Mrs. J. D. Fleming S. Main-st. have returned from a motor trip to Columbus, where they were the guests of friends over the Fourth.

Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Crepe, W. North-st., will return Sunday from a short visit in Cleveland. They will be accompanied home by Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Crepe and children, who will visit here.

The Organized Attack On Marriage

The Moral Plight of Our Young People in the Face of a Determined Alien Onslaught

"What Our Invaders Have Undertaken to Do Is to Put Their New Psychology Into the Minds Of Imaginative Youth"

BY SAMUEL MERWIN

EDITOR'S NOTE: That modern marriage may be endangered by defects in the system, or in the characters or training of the participants, is an idea to which many subscribe, and which has already been touched upon in this great discussion of the problems of present-day society. Now comes Samuel Merwin, with a contribution as forceful as it is arresting, in which he shows that a clamorous, insistent part, at least, of the dissatisfaction with marriage, may be traced back to a foreign source.

THE whole structure of Anglo-Saxon culture and its institution of marriage are being attacked with a force and a venom that has, at the first encounter, really taken our breath away. The enemy may be said, I think, to have won the first encounter, which might be referred to as the battle of New York. His object appears to be to capture the imagination of these young people of ours. He has already made considerable headway, shrewdly confusing his infiltrations into our traditions with the disillusionment and reaction that followed the war. The weapons used are ideas, fiction, pictures, essays, criticisms and persistent talk, a clamor of talk.

This attack comes out of Eastern and Central Europe. And let us make no mistake about it. It is a real attack. The leaders of the invasion have a common and well-understood point of view. They know what they are about. The thing arises out of a mental background of anarchy and subversion. To think of it, as some of my pretty observant American friends do, as a Jewish movement is absurd. Any of the soundest defenders of the old American faith—of Jewish blood, men and women whose fathers have lived with us and who derive from our culture or from that of Western Europe.

You will find also in these fighting units attacking our standards numbers of brilliant young Republican Irishmen who hate the Anglo-Saxon tradition and its American development with an undying fire, yet the very fabric of that tradition is brilliantly woven today, as in the past, with the color of Irish imagination and wit. And an outstanding fact is that Irish literature, like their songs, is clean as well as beautiful.

GLIB AND CLEVER EFFECTIVENESS

No, it more regional than racial. Restless peoples, strong in personal ego, have come swarming across the ocean eager to destroy or subvert a culture in which they can find no place of their own. They are determined and they are glib. They have seized on every available channel of propaganda and have cleverly created new ones. We owe it to ourselves not to underestimate their cleverness. They are novelists, critics, painters, essayists, showmen. They operate on the military theory of constantly attacking.

They ridicule, above everything else, the Victorian Century in England and America, because that has been our strongest background. And they have us almost comically on the defensive. We shall recall later, when this campaign has finally found its way into history, that the Victorian Century was a great century.

They will perhaps cry out that such an utterance as this of mine is "un-American." For that is another comic angle of this curious business. They seize on all our own phrases and turn them hotly against us. In place of a faith—for I have been unable to find any faith in this invading army—they have a sort of philosophy, wholly materialistic. They are, to a man and a woman, Freudian in morals, futurist in painting, cacophonously suggestive in music, perverse in literature, Bolshevik in politics.

Family life is to them cheaply and stoddily sentimental. Parenthood is an experiment in eugenics rather than a responsibility. Decency is unimagined and a concession to prejudice. Kindness and humanity, of which there was at times a little in those quaint Victorian days, are sneered out of court.

I have spoken of their philosophy. Of course they have to have such. No movement could live without it. The patron saint of their literature is the brilliant, filthy James Joyce. Their dogma is the psychology of Freud. We touch complications at this point. This man Freud, while consumed by his own fierce logic and lacking any personal sense of delicacies of those "imponderables" which, in truth make human living possible and sometimes agreeable, has undoubtedly made a contribution to the study of psychology. His followers have developed and in some measure humanized his savage analysis of human conduct. But all this is still a matter for the laboratory of the student.

UNDER THEIR SHELL What our invaders have undertaken to do is to put their new psychology with its complex, its wish-fulfillments and its practice of psychoanalysis, into the minds of every imaginative young American who falls under their spell. Freudian psychology is their strongest conversation weapon. In itself it is a keen study into the mental and emotional processes of the human creature. But in the hands of practical authors, it becomes the surest means of undermining the reticence and decency that have made us, for better or worse, what we are. It short circuits and native morality, and makes an unpleasantly anti-alistic indecency seen almost the thing. Look over their writings, and if you have an opportunity, listen to their talk. The leaders of this curious impudent invasion. You will, I think, be unable to escape the consciousness of something unpleasant about it, something foreign to our finer ideals of life—really a faint. The good old fashioned word "degeneracy" does come to mind. Most of us have sensed it in their madly paintings. We all feel it in their writings. And that they have in some degree succeeded in capturing the imaginations of our bright young people is as clear as the print of many current novels.

Beside the pervasively, self-consciously primitive scenes and passages in certain of these volumes, the frank and clever pages of Chaucer and Fielding open to us like sunlit fields from a mountain view. It is interesting, too, to note that the books by Americans that draw praise from the invaders are nearly all fundamentally vicious or at least are written in the foreign manner. The American spirit implies a hearty courage in the struggle of life. These Oriental aliens are promoting a defeatist propaganda in literature.

OUR CLUMSY DEFENSE Of course, we are going at the business of meeting the invasion as blunderingly as possible. We would. We suppress an honest book while all the more vicious propaganda slips through. Those among us who are fundamentalists strive manfully to herd into churches all these young people who may have been exposed to the contagion. Or we become suddenly excited about stopping divorce. Or we frantically put up the immigration bars, forgetting that no physical barrier has yet stopped an idea.

We are pretty clumsy. It seems clear enough that we can't stop life or impound it or drive it back to a place we once knew. It will go on. It will experiment alarmingly and take to strange roads. The duck and the chicklings come familiarly to mind. We may even admit that our clever attackers, for all their reactionary force, may in the long run contribute something to our culture, a quickening of thought, a new aliveness.

In passing, perhaps I should explain the use of the term "reactionary." Surely human evolution, if it means anything at all, implies a growth upward in the direction of thought and spirit. Our attackers are frankly out to turn back the clock of evolution toward an unpleasant primitiveness. Reactionary seems the proper word for it.

A NEW CROP OF YOUTH From all of which it may seem less strange that our much-discussed young people are certainly a new sort of crop. None of us older folk, if we are altogether honest about it, know quite how to take them. They are experimental, clamorous, rebellious. They talk and act as they choose, in a new, free way. They know little about the past and care less. They accept no judgments but their own. Life, to them, isn't a contest until they came along. And now, finding it in their hands, they like nothing better than taking it apart and trying to find out what makes it go. I confess, as one often bewildered observer, to watching the performance with mingled sympathy, alarm, and admiration.

Of course, this isn't just the familiar gulf between generations. True enough, every young crop has been more interested in experiment and rebellion than in conformity. That is natural and healthy. Youth is force and fighting spirit. Conformity is surrender and, finally, spiritual death. Life has always been more or less a conflict between the two. Older folks usually forget that the vigor of youth is surely as important in the scheme of things as the judgment of age. But something new has taken place. Our present young folks have left the reservation, walked out. That simple gave the old restraints the final blow. No, the trouble began earlier.

MAN LOSES CONTROL OF WOMAN I think it began thirty years ago in the first reaction against the Victorian Century. We spoke of the movement then as "fin de siècle" and of the century. But that wasn't all it was. New economic forces were working. The old-fashioned home was going, changing into apartments. The work that had before been done within the home was being done outside. Weaving and baking had always been women's work and home work. They were now done in factories, and the women, a few millions of them, followed the work into the factories. What the soap box orators used to refer to as "the economic independence of women," resulted.

Man lost his hold of the purstrings, and therefore lost control of woman. Suffrage couldn't be stopped after that. The old, pretty sentimentality that had surrounded the sheltered woman was gone. She had become, everything considered, as free as a man. The young girls, growing up in the Nineteen Hundreds, worked naturally up into an altogether new sort of thing. The old idea of marrying for a living faded out. Marriage became an experiment, to be tried sincerely enough, but to be discarded as sincerely if it didn't work.

The old morality had been tempered with fear, but now the fear was gone. Religion had weakened too. At last, the religion of the old church and dogma type. Our children, even then, were growing up into a world that was most of us didn't know much about and that some of us don't understand yet.

PRE-MATERNITY WORLD-WEARY

Something like this—I think I am not far from the main truth—was the situation when the war broke on the world in four years of disaster and horror. If you want to know how thoughtful young people of today feel about this appalling spectacle, ask them. They'll tell you. And don't forget, as you listen, that they were the ones who had to fight it. What they will probably tell you is that the old civilization, the Victorian civilization if you like, found its complete expression in the war. That finance, science, statecraft, and (so they will add) religion combined to build the world directly into that unspeakable climax of blood and destruction.

They don't blame the Germans alone, they blame everybody. And they frankly don't think much of a civilization that works itself out in such a mess. They'd prefer to try some other kind. When you point out that in their experimenting they may be making fresh trouble, they coolly reply that nothing could be worse than the war, and, for that matter the peace that has followed it.

I don't believe we can deal intelligently with these strange young people unless we are willing to sit down and consider at least a few of the causes that have made them what they are. We have them to deal with, you know, boys and girls and young women who have been disillusioned to the point of world weariness. They are prepared to hate everything that has to do with the old kind of civilization. Even morality, because they see with a clarity that is sometimes appalling that the old morality cloaked a thousand unmanageable truths and more than a thousand hypocrisies.

A LANGUAGE OF THEIR OWN

Since the old scheme of life didn't work—and we older ones must be prepared to admit that it has broken down pretty miserably—they are inclined to look with a fresh eye on whatever apparent facts may present themselves. They meet with a frank respect certain primitive but natural impulses from which we were taught to turn fearfully away. They discuss them candidly. They have an understanding and a language of their own. They are, as has been said, too young to be shocked. They are going straight ahead in their own way.

To be sure, up to this point the revolt we are considering doesn't stand out so alarmingly as one or two others in the history of which they are so scornful. They aren't yet bent on abolishing the calendar as the revolutionists did at Paris a hundred and thirty-odd years ago.

If I have so far made nothing clear, it is that it is no good scolding these young people. They are not, as we say, starting something. They are a result. In certain respects they are more attractive than we were in our younger days. They are most fearfully honest in thought and speech, which our fundamentalist traditions never permitted us to be. And they are open to conviction on every imaginable subject, are indeed altogether clear-eyed and clear-headed about the whole business.

A TIME TO DRAW TOGETHER

No, we shan't accomplish much thru censorship or revised dogmas, nor by ordering our young people to stop thinking. They won't stop. Their problem is real enough, and they must live it out. But what we can do, it seems to me, is to let Nature take its course with those exposed youngsters and put in our energy defending the culture which these aliens are so mercilessly attacking.

I think we should draw together in that business. Fashions change in thought and feeling as in clothes. Traditions do die. And ridicule can work the change in a decade. This is, after all, our country. It derives in the main, however "un-American" the statement may sound to some ears, from that splendid growth of Anglo-Saxon culture.

It is a pretty fine old tree, with roots that strike deep into a rich soil. These aliens are hacking at it viciously enough. And often, odd as the words appear plausibly enough. They would be happier to see a dead stump where it once stood.

But would we?

LOVE LETTERS

Clandestine Flirtation Abruptly Ends—Woman Realizes Mistake—Man Insists on Keeping Love Letters—Woman Is Worried to Distraction—Susie Smart Solves Problem

Dear Miss Smart:

I am coming to you with a very hard problem, hoping you can help me. New the person I am speaking of are both married. These parties each have letters in their keeping that are so loving with endearing words. This lady gave the man some pictures of herself. He gave her a little token, too. This man called one day and asked for his gift. She thought he was sincere in what he said and so gave him his gift back. He always said what a bad wife he has and that he has left her and so on, but he is still living with her and has been all the time.

What has looked so queer to the lady is that he would give her letters and pictures to a friend to keep. Now, Miss Smart, I would think that man should return her pictures and letters to her. Don't you think so? She is heart-sick to think that she has done such a thing. But what this lady does not understand is why he wants to have her letters and pictures and why he has led to her so much about his life.

Please don't think me foolish for writing but this lady knew you could help her out with her problem. The lady has asked in a kind way for the things and he just laughs. She wished now she had kept his gift now she may never get her's back. Is there anything she can do without making it public. I have tried to explain the case as best I can.

Thank you for your kindness.

After such a flirtation that your friend had, I think the only proper thing to do is to let the entire matter drop. Both of the parties no doubt now see their mistakes. The gentleman (if he can be called such) is very rude in not returning the letters and pictures, after he has asked for his and received them. However, if he refuses to give them to her, the only thing for her to do is to forget him and the entire affair.

The fact that he has given her letters to some one else, no doubt shows that he cares nothing for her and realizes how wrong it would be for him to keep them in his possession.

Both of them should forget their mistake in allowing their friendship to become so serious.

Dear Susie:

Please answer my questions. I am near 16 years old now and I should like to know how much I should weigh. Are dresses being worn shorter? Can a person mix age with wearing school vacation? If where? How is my writing?

A READER: Girls your age should weigh 112 pounds and be five feet, one inch tall.

Yes, the dresses are being worn much shorter than last summer. Some are worn as short as 12 inches from the floor.

It is necessary to get a certificate from the superintendent of schools, if you wish to work. They grant you a vacation certificate, which entitles you to work wherever you wish.

Good.

Dear Susie:

Like all others, I come with perplexing questions. I am 16 years old and only five feet tall. What is the normal height for me? How much should I weigh? Do you think I am too young to go to a dance once in a while at the parks here if I stay with my own people?

Do you have any objection to knickers? My mother does not like to have me wear them. What would be proper to wear to a barn dance? I would not like to wear anything very good in a barn. Kindly comment on my English, spelling, punctuation, stationery and writing so that I may be able to correct my mistakes next time I write. You. That is, if I may write to you, may I?

You should be five feet, one inch tall if you are 16 years of age, so you see you are not as under height as you may think. The normal weight is 112 pounds.

Yes, I think you are too young to go to a public dance, unless you are accompanied by your mother or some other older person. Children your age are too young to go out in a "bunch," because you can't imagine the "bunch" staying together all evening. "Feet up, do they?"

I think knickers are proper to wear on hikes, picnics and the like but I do not approve of them on the street. Do as your mother wishes regarding the wearing of knickers, tho, Micky.

A silk sport dress, a sweater and skirt, or some other kind of a sport outfit would be proper, I should say.

So you want me to criticize your letter? Your English is very good, your spelling correct, your punctuation perfect and your writing very good and legible. As for stationery, it is proper, but a bit too business-like for a letter to me, I think. Yes, please write again.

Dear Miss Smart: Just an odd questioner who loves to ask some questions for dear Miss Smart to answer.

I love to write stories and have written quite a few. They are children's stories and I would like to know where I could sell them. They are short stories.

What can a person do to reduce? The girls that I go with are thin and they make fun of me because I am fat. I am this thin, don't you? I am almost afraid to take as reducing medicine?

Please give me the meanings of the following names: Helen, Margaret, Esther, Dorothy, Catherine, Anna and Mary.

Would you please give me a menu for an afternoon luncheon? How is my English and writing for a girl of 15, who will be in the eighth grade. May I write again? M. G.

If you think your stories are the very best you can do, send them to either of the following magazines: Youth's Companion, Ferryet, Concord, N. H. or St. Nicholas, 353 4th Ave, New York City. Be sure your English and spelling is correct.

If you wish to reduce, diet and exercise are the two essential things. Eat such foods as lean meat, poultry, fish, thin soups, salads without oil, green vegetables, fruits, dark breads and toast. Eat just two meals a day for a while and do not eat between meals. Take plenty of exercise and take long walks each day. Roller skate, play tennis and such sports as those that are good for you. Do not take kind of medicine to reduce.

Helen means light; Emma means a pearl; Esther means pure; Catherine means pure; Dorothy means the gift of God; Anna means bitter and Anna means grace.

A fruit salad, nut bread, waffles, pickles and cold tea and a very nice luncheon; or, Waffles, minced ham, sausage and lemonade would be nice. Your writing is good, M. but your English can be improved a bit. Yes, write again.

Dear Miss Smart: How much should a girl 15 years old weigh? How tall should she be? What are the meanings of the following names: Martha, Mary, Freda, Elizabeth and Kathleen? I am light complexioned and have blue eyes. What colors should I wear? Isn't there any other meaning of Mary besides bitter? FAYO.

Girls 15 years of age should weigh 85 pounds and be four feet, ten inches in height. Martha means sorrowful; Mary means a pearl; Freda means ruler; Elizabeth means worshiper of God and Kathleen means pure.

Blue, yellow, jade and would be becoming shades to you. No, "bitter" is all I can do. Fayto, is your name Mary or do you object to such a meaning? Very good.

Dear Miss Smart: Will you please answer a few questions for me? Do you think a girl 15 years old is too young to go with a fellow as a week? What is Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. address? How long does it take a letter to go to Hollywood? Are skirts going to be worn short or this year? What kind of hats are going to be worn? How old must a girl and man be before they can get married? How is my writing? Thank you, Micky.

Yes, I do, Micky. Address Douglas, Jr., at 438 Fifth-Ave, New York City. About five days. Yes, skirts are being worn much shorter this summer than last. Sport hats of white felt and flannel are being worn, while the dress hats are larger and trimmed in flowers and leaves. Different states have different laws, Micky. A trifle large, isn't it?

Why? I do say 'Adams' Apple'.

—because, according to myth, a piece of the forbidden fruit stuck in Adam's throat. There, in all of Adam's sons, the lump remains to this day! Yet humans, young and old, find

THE WELL DRESSED WOMAN

By MARY MARSHALL

Clothes for Sea or Lake Shore Demand Midsummer Notice

There is more to the seashore than the sea. And so there is more to one's seaside or lake-side wardrobe than a bathing suit. Important as sea or lake bathing is, and important as the clothes are for this diversion, more important still are the clothes one wears outside the bathing hours.

Never before, perhaps, have there been so many becoming and attractive clothes for summer vacation wear. All the striped effia, the colored flannels, the white heather, the myriad weaves of cotton and linen are appropriately included in one's trunkful of vacation clothes. And colors that would be quite scandalous in the city are only in good taste and repute in the bright sun of the water-side.

TWO OF A KIND.

One clever woman, who likes to dress well but who dislikes spending more time than necessary over planning her clothes, has had six frocks of colored pongee silk made, all alike. They are in peach, corn color, mauve, pale green, brown and soft blue. They are made in the simplest sport style, with turnback collars bound with white, and with bound buttonholes and white bone buttons as the only trimming.

This is a good idea—the idea of two or more frocks of a kind. Choose a style and fabric and colors that are becoming, and then there will be something distinctive and interesting about your morning frocks. You could do the same thing with gingham or with striped silk or with flannel.

LONG SLEEVES OR SHORT?

We are in an interesting period, so far as sleeve lengths are concerned. We may wear them long—we may wear them short. Fashion sanctions either sort.

At the shore a good many women choose long sleeves this year, because they are a protection against sunburn.

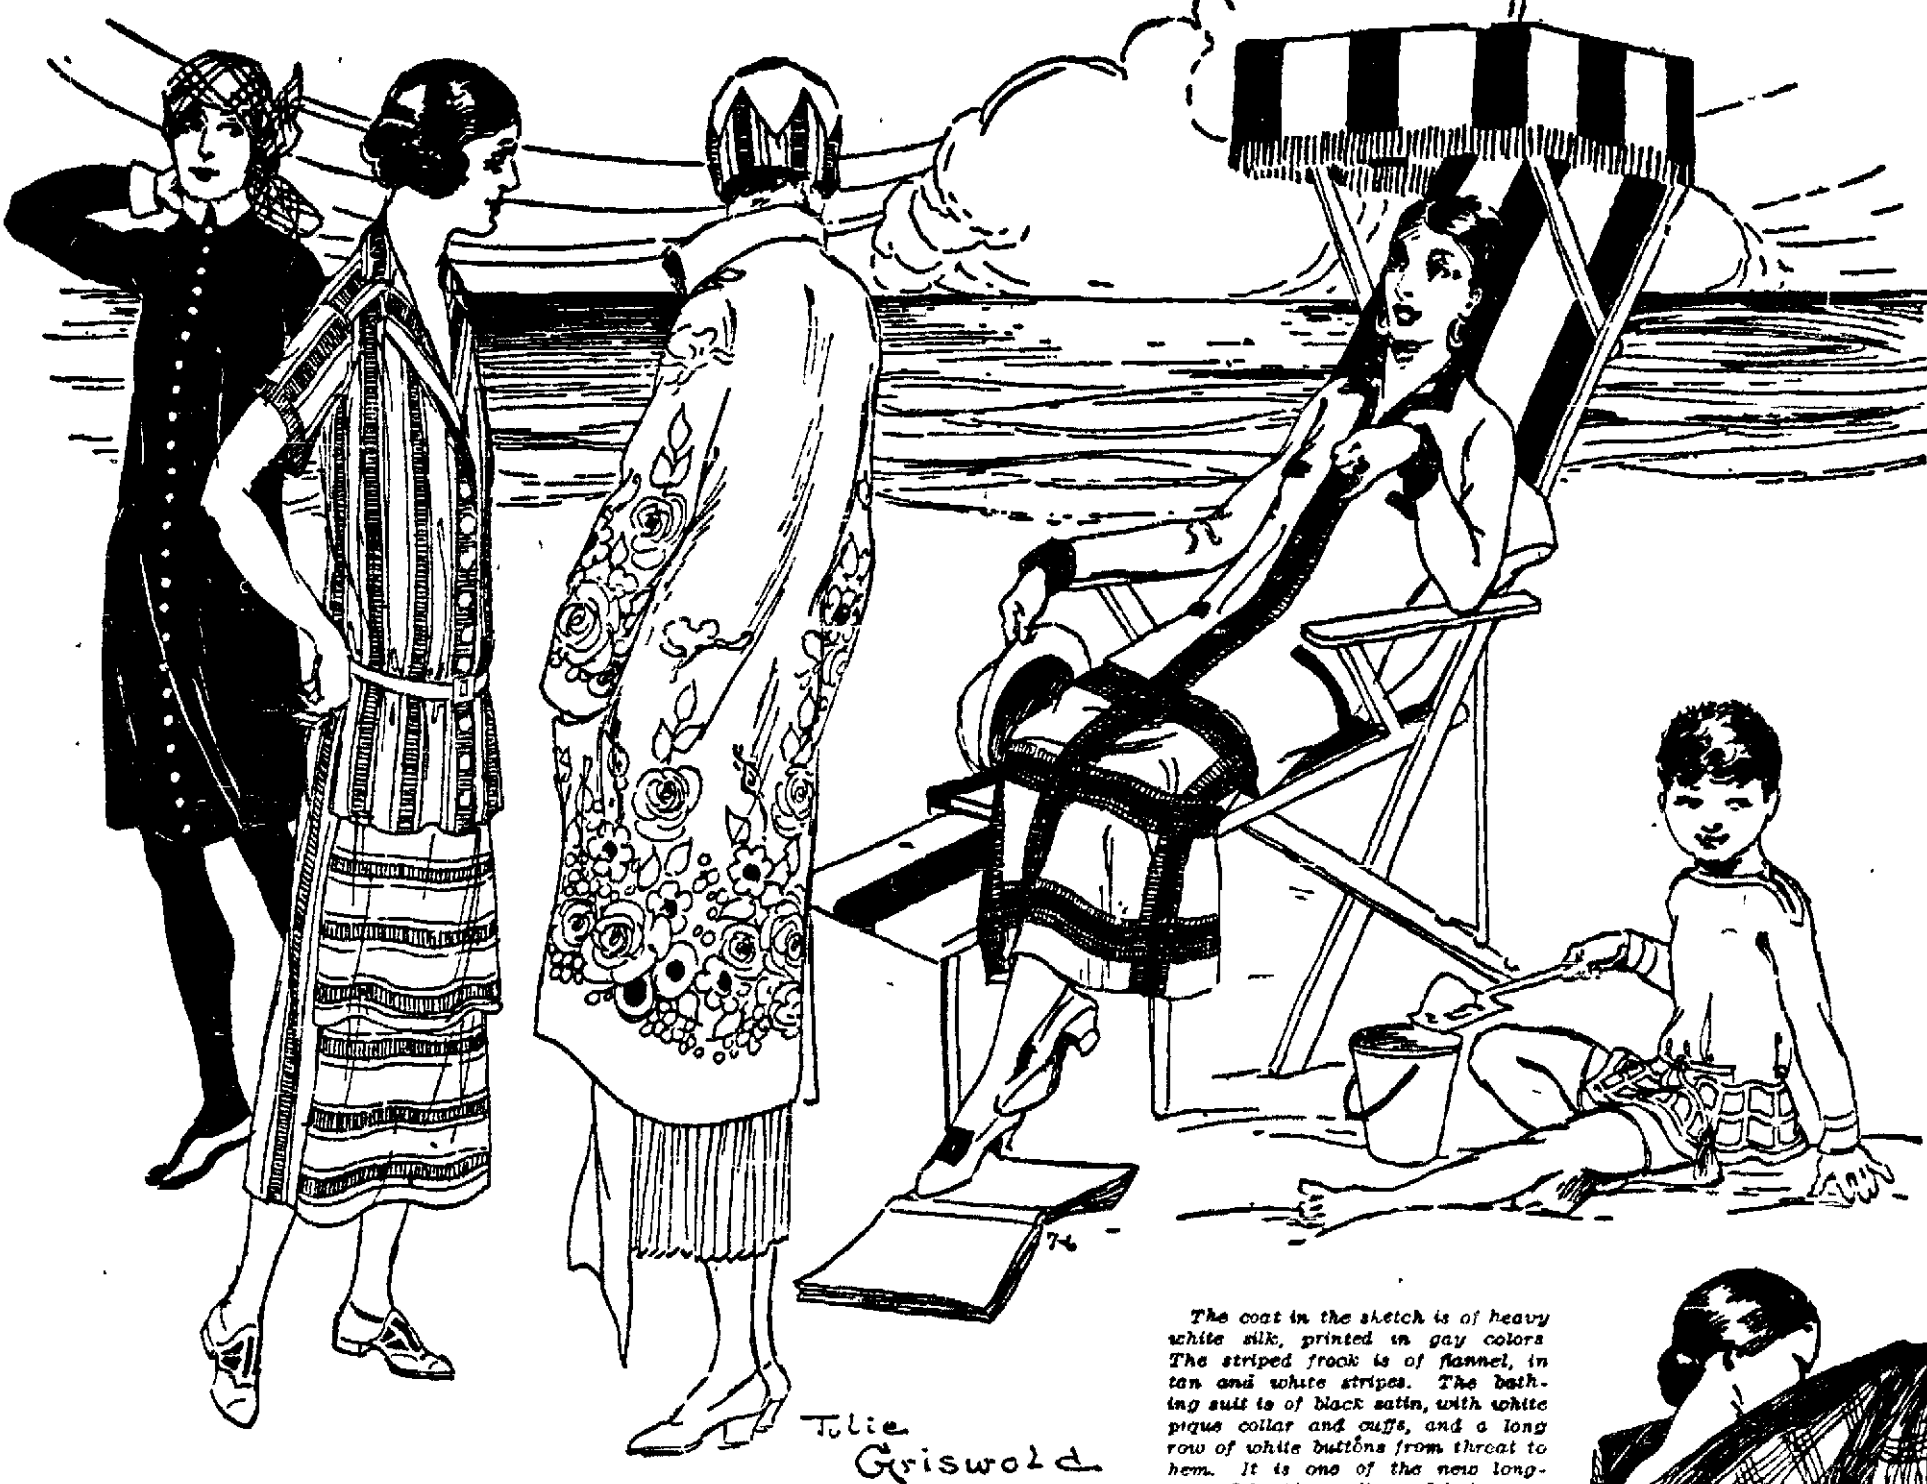

Parasols are revived to a certain extent each summer, especially in the glaring sunshine of the seaside. But we are, somehow, not a race of parasol lovers. At least, we are not in an age when the parasol is a natural outlet for woman's love of finery. Some of us find parasols almost as burdensome as we should find the long chignon veils with which our mothers or grandmothers swathed their faces when they braved the sun of the sea.

Therefore we choose long-sleeved frocks and coats to ward off sunburn.

When you wear a short-sleeved frock you can do much to protect the arms by using a scarf or one of the little capes that are hardly more than scarfs. There are innumerable variations to the scarf, which still bears the distinction of being both popular and smart.

Next Week—Thin Clothes for Hot Days.

It is not only the clothes you wear in the water but the clothes you wear on the sand and at your hotel or cottage that make the summer vacation interesting and successful.

Julie Griswold

Below, play suit for little boy. It is made of knitted fabric, in blue, plaided with white. The figure in the beach chair wears a frock of knitted green silk, plaided with blue and yellow.

The Swimming Party

THE swimming party which was once looked upon with a bit of dismay or concern is assuming a more and more important place in our scheme of summer social activities. The hostess who is fortunate enough to have a swimming pool in her own house or who can arrange to use a swimming tank of some club or hotel for her party need not wait until summer for her swimming party. But most of us cannot thus reverse the seasons.

Perhaps you would still be a bit dismayed to be asked to have luncheon or afternoon tea or supper in your bathing suit! But really, isn't it all a matter of getting used to changed ideas? And bathing suits by and large are as decorous as evening gowns. There are shocking extremes in either category. And of course there are all manner of wraps, scarfs, etc., to be worn over the suit when one wishes.

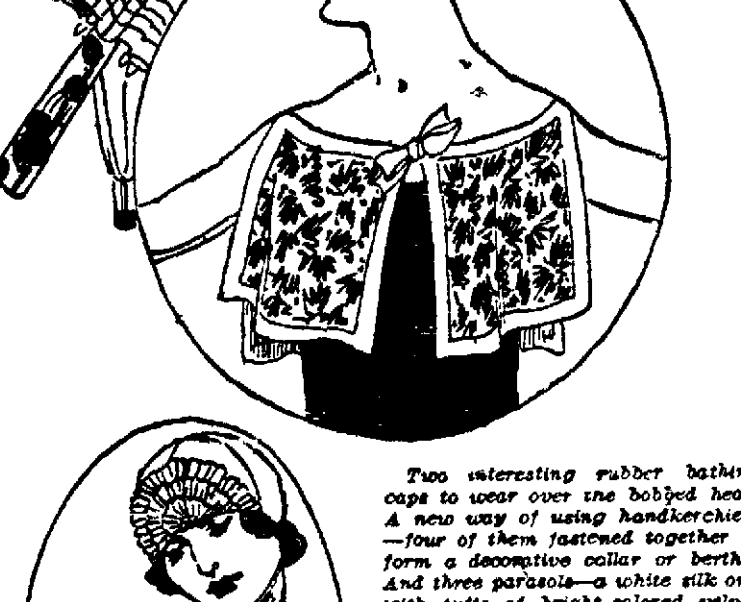

Edna Tipton, in a useful little book on "Table Decorations" just published, has some interesting comments to make on swimming parties.

"Many hostesses take guests to a club or restaurant for refreshments after the aquatic sports. Few hostesses could refrain from appropriately decorating the hospitable board, since there are now so many unique bathing accessories to feature.

"One table could have as its sole center decoration a beautiful rubber-kidney doll-bag (so convenient to carry damp togs in). Rubber bathing bracelets would make useful or at least appropriate favors.

"Another table might use a large rubber bandana as a centerpiece and smaller rubber wrist 'kerchiefs' as doilies (these last named to be given to guests afterwards). On the centerpiece a tiny diving-board upon which stood a bathing-girl doll ready to leap would be the only other decoration needed."

Two scarfs and a little cap. The scarf at the left is of silk, irregularly stamped with long lines that form a plaid. The one at the right is of knitted silk with patch pockets of bits of Chinese embroidery and heavy silk fringe. The cap is made of white silk, with applied tucks of green. The hat matches.

Two interesting rubber bathing caps to wear over the bobbed head. A new way of using handkerchiefs—four of them fastened together to form a decorative collar or bertha. And three parasols—a white silk one with tufts of bright-colored velvet on it, a doll parasol of plaid gingham, and a parasol of plain-colored heavy linen.

BATHING CAPS FOR BOBBED HEADS

Smaller Hats Are the Rule—and Smaller Bathing Caps

Of course, the rubber cap is capable of a good deal of adjustment to smaller or larger head size. But just keep in mind, if you have recently bobbed your hair, that you must have a snugger bathing cap to keep the water out of your bob than you had when your hair was long.

Your Bathing Costume Nowadays Consists of Many Parts

ONCE upon a time when a woman was going to the seashore or lake side she bought a "bathing suit" and some kind of waterproof cap and let it go at that. Now she invests in a "beach costume" and some fifteen or twenty suitable accessories—waterproof vanity cases, rubber wrist handkerchiefs, bathing bracelets, stockings and puffed slippers to match the costume, flesh-colored rubber corsets or brassiers, jewel bag, parasol, walking stick, slip-on sweater, pajamas, terry cloth bath caps and rubberized swim beach wrap.

Interestingly enough the most striking and most talked about bathing costumes of the season are not the most abbreviated. There are so-called beach pajamas in terry cloth that are regarded as among the beach "sensations" of the season. And these are made with fairly high necks, long sleeves and wide trousers extending well over the ankles. In itself it seems quite the most modest costume that a woman could choose. Yet the young girls who appear on the beaches this summer in these most unbecoming of costumes will doubtless be looked upon as most daring.

High Neck, Long Sleeves.

Many observers would concede that quite the smartest costumes that have appeared on the beaches this spring and summer are those with high neck and long close sleeves. A close kin to this is the suit with close, high neck, but left sleeveless. Made of black satin or taffeta these smart suits are usually buttoned trimly up the middle of the front.

There is hardly a fabric that has not been turned to account in the making of beach costumes or accessories. Long past are the days when only a certain limited list of materials was regarded as appropriate.

Taffeta silk might head the list, with all-black taffeta prominent. One good looking suit chosen by an inveterate sea bather is made with black silk bloomers fitted into close cuffs at the knees and over this a tunic that is skaped in somewhat at the waist and flares over the hips. The entire tunic is covered with narrow ruffles—not more than two inches wide—of the black taffeta.

Plaid and striped taffetas combining black and some bright color are used effectively in some of the new beach costumes. French dress-makers who seem never to grow weary of their Scotch plaids are responsible for some brilliant tartan effects in taffeta bathing costumes.

Satin, alpaca,—here and there velvet,—silk crepe, English broad cloth, gingham, terry cloth and all manner of silk or woolen knit fabrics are to be found represented on the fashionable beaches. Hand painting, which has come to decorate everything in woman's wardrobe from stockings to handkerchiefs and hats, also appears on bathing suits. It is most often used on a background of silk crepe though taffeta is also used as the medium of painted designs.

Bathing Hats Spite of Bobs.

One might think that the well-nigh universal fashion for short hair among women would have simplified the question of bathing headgear. Not so. It is quite as important to protect an artificially waved "bob" from the effects of the water as ever it was to preserve the curl of long hair. If we were entirely a race of curly or wavy-haired women and all went with bobbed or shingled hair then the bathing cap or hat might become only a memory. We might all bathe or swim as regardless of head covering as the women of the South seas.

However, bathing caps and hats have great possibilities for what the French women call coquetterie—a word, by the way, which never seems to be perfectly translated by our own coquetry. There is hardly a shape of hat offered by the milliners but what has been adopted as a possible bathing hat. Since all hats fit closely over the hair nowadays it is not difficult to adapt their shape to those hats which must fit so close as to exclude dampness. Of course trimmed or brimmed hats are never chosen by the woman whose bathing costume is first and foremost a costume for swimming. One rather sensational peacock bathing costume had for head covering a turban of blue taffeta trimmed with a large peacock feather held in position with a silver buckle. Hardly a hat for the swimmer.

Slip-on Sweaters.

The slip-on sweater as an accessory for the bather is something that ought to make a strong appeal to the more sportswomanly among bathers. Such a sweater should have long close fitting sleeves and should fit fairly high at the neck and should of course be made of wool. It is then a far better safeguard against chilling effects of the cool air after the ocean dip than a cape or wrap of flowing though more generous proportions. Another practical sort of wrap for the straightforward bather is the long wrap of terry cloth. These may be laid out on the sand to serve as beach rugs or used as capes. And one terry cloth cape is also fitted up to do as a carry-all for bathing costume and accessories. When rolled up and tied the bather can easily transport her bathing costume to and from the bathing beach.

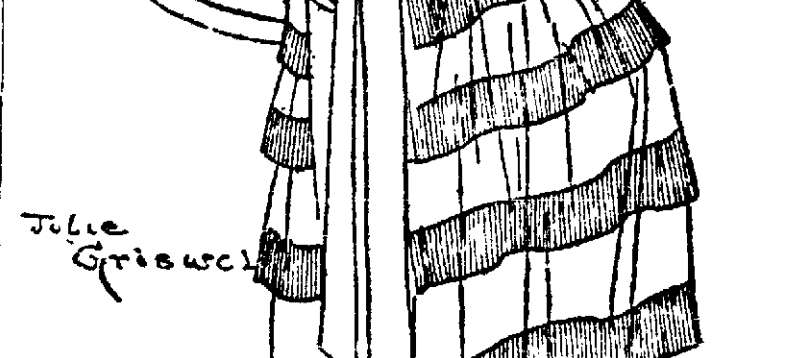

Well liked by the short-haired girl who wants a head covering that gives real protection is the little rubber turban or bonnet that ties closely under the chin or is fastened with straps fitted with snapers. Roman striped ribbons and silks seem to have found their way in generous numbers to the bathing hats and caps of the season and are used as bands or bows on many caps of rubberized silk or satin.

THE RIGHT KIND OF SHADE HAT

Garden-party hats are smart for afternoon wear. They really do shade the eyes. But their chief advantage is that they are tremendous. By becoming to most women.

The woman who wants a practical hat to wear in the sun—on the beaches, on the golf links or wherever her pleasure takes her away from the shadow of trees or houses—will not find the garden-party type of hat particularly desirable. It is primarily a dress-up hat. She must choose some smaller shade-giving shape.

The new position hat gives practical shade to the eyes. And so do some of the cloches. Choose one such hat in plain felt or straw or silk to take with you on your summer outings.

Rubber Accessories for the Bather

Tiny rubber vanities are made with washable dolls' heads dressed in rubber, with draw-strings about the necks. Some of these are made to dangle from a rubber bracelet.

And there are rubber bracelets in all colors. Yellow, red, blue, black and white combinations, and green. They are of the bangle variety.

Some of the rubber bracelets are of the strap sort that hold a small purse on their under side. In this

"I want a mate," Green Badge Tells Paris

"JEANNE, ma petite, are we happy?"
 "Yen, Francois."
 "And are we glad there is such a thing as the Club National des Lieres Verts?"
 "Indeed, and indeed, yes, Francois."
 "There, monsieur, that is all I believe it is necessary to say."
 The writer had been interviewing Monsieur and Madame Francois Furtwengler, who were married last July through the auspices of the most unique club in the world—a club whose object is to bring young people together, get them interested in each other and promote happy marriages.

STARTED AS JOKE
 The club idea, which seems destined to assume big proportions in France, grew out of a jesting paragraph by a well-known French polymath—Clement Vautel. But what Vautel put out as a joke, another well-known Parisian journalist, Charles Fontaine, took seriously. He developed the idea. He got big men and women interested. He pointed out that nowhere could a young man or girl be so lonely as in a big city. It was difficult for young people to meet the right kind of companions and, therefore, difficult for them to get married. Out of this grew the Club des Lieres Verts—the Green Badge Club. Already it has nearly one thousand members in Paris and soon branch clubs will be started in the big provincial cities. Fontaine is director-president. Important people like Edouard Herriot, General Mangin, one of the heroes of the great war, René Fonck, the famous aviator hero of the war, and Henri Robert, the most distinguished lawyer in France, are on the honorary committee of the club and take an active interest in its success.

ALL CAN ENROLL
 The machinery is fairly simple. Any Parisian, man or woman, who is either single, widowed or divorced, is eligible to membership, provided he or she passes certain tests. The would-be member must be recommended by at least two members. Discreet inquiry is made

Do You Invent Worries?

BY CYNTHIA GREY
 THE Mah Jongg widows' section was holding fast when John dropped in at the club. He had been frequenting the establishment more or less of late—perhaps too much, primarily because he hadn't any better place to go. Sliding into an easy chair he found himself surrounded by a dozen or more members engaged in their customary mutual-consulting party. All told, the assembled group represented as fine an aggregation of mis-mated mates as ever got together. Each had a wife—somehow. John hadn't seen his for a week, although at that moment he had some vague idea that she was scheduled to play bridge at Mrs. Harrington's Orphans' Benefit lawn fete. As was the rule, the levee went on until a late hour with the prescribed exchange of ecumenical, small talk and metaphorical back-slappings—often self-administered. Then came the inevitable whisky and soda and a lull just before the conversation turned upon its precise heels and drifted to the preponderant topic of—Wives.

HERE was a common meeting ground. It represented a field of research thrashed over at least once a week.

DOWN deep in his heart, John knew that he had come principally tonight as on other nights to participate in the discussion. And the others knew that they were there under similar auspices and for the same purpose. The evening's prelude had been nothing more than sheer camouflage. All were aware of that. There was a slight shuffling of feet before the conversational boat shoved off. Then came the usual summary of domestic tribulations and grief. Something was wrong, so Hastings agreed. Why, he couldn't get even so much as a civil word from the Mrs.

Came down to breakfast in kid-mono dishabille and did nothing but toss hot ones at him from over the edge of her breakfast paper.

HASTINGS has a typical case. John considered it much like his own. But John refrained from discussing Effie directly. Instead he spoke in generalities. Being a martyr suited him. He wanted to feel that Effie was principally to blame for the estrangement that he imagined was growing up between them. She was leaving him alone too much. She'd rather have her parties to his companionship. They never seemed to jibe on anything any more, he reflected. Oh, it was dreadful. Wasn't he a poor unlucky devil?

JOHN was roused from his reverie by a call boy who announced that John's wife was on the phone. The message seemed to stimulate him. But he didn't know why.

"Dear," she said, "please come home tonight. I haven't seen you for days. I would have called you before but thought you were busy. This club work is boring me to death. I'm on the entertainment committee but didn't tell you. Guess I'm not cut out for the public hostess. We'll have a little lunch, too, when you get here. How about a rarebit? That's fine. Goodbye dear."

IN a moment he understood. "Billy girl," he chuckled to himself. "Trying out some social service work in her own way. Thought something was funny."

HE was in his coat in a minute. "Where you going?" came the cry. "Home to the wife," said John. "I've just found out that I'm all wrong and that we're going to have rarebit for midnight lunch. 'Hope it will make me a little more attentive. Try the recipe out on your own wives. So long."

BE FITTED FOR POST

BY EUGENIA WALLACE
 Leader in Professional Women's Clubs

A CERTAIN corporation, hard hit, decided to "lay off" employees. All were anxious to accept Miss A. Her fellow workers wondered how she could be so cheerful. Not so her employers. They knew. So did she—there was no one else who could fill her place! She got results and they simply couldn't afford to lose her. How did she get them? By being the first to come and the last to leave, living for work alone? Not single track minds like that can be picked up any day, at bargain prices. Business-getting personality and general attractiveness? Again no. There was a waiting list of just that. She was valuable for exactly two reasons—she was thoroughly trained for her job; she was a well-balanced combination of hard worker and charming woman.

The first fifty per cent of every success depends upon training—technical skill and ability to handle the tools of business—but women are often reluctant to take it. Some educators insist that the recent unemployment proved that safety lay in training alone, and not in the "executive ability" or "personality" too many banked upon. Yet executive ability and personality are ingredients of that second fifty per cent necessary to success—the total of such very human qualities as confidence in self; ability to work with others; initiative; love of the job. Sometimes even more is needed.

How many can fill your place? A searching question that every one must ask if she would gauge not only the safety of her job but its actual money value.

Clubs—Are You Member in the Backlog?

into his or her character and standing. Identity cards and birth certificates are examined. Proof has to be given that the candidate has not a doubtful police report. In other words, the "carte judiciaire" kept by the police about every citizen of France, has to be a blank page—showing the aspirant has never had any complaint lodged against him. When a new member is elected, he is given a badge whose marking shows whether he is single, widowed or divorced. MEMBERS NUMBERED Each member has a serial letter and a serial number. Thus the new member may be given A-235. He pays 35 francs initiation fee and 25 francs dues. There are really three sections to the club—one where the working classes meet, one where the tradespeople and clerks meet, and finally one for professors, lawyers, doctors, writers, etc. Frequent dances, parties, excursions are given, the object being to throw members together. No formal introductions are made. If Mr. A-235 wants a dance with Miss B-56 he goes up and asks for it. Should he become further interested in her and thinks he would like to pay court, he indicates this fact in the secretary of the club. He then fills out a form which gives much personal information about himself—his profession, his degree of education, his salary and revenues, all the facts about his father, mother, brothers and sisters, how much fortune he has, what social talents he has, whether his preference is for art, literature or sports, what his religion is and where he is a communicant. This information, with his consent, is then given to the young woman. If she is interested in him, she likewise gives information about herself. If the parents consent, the courtship then becomes active. Before they become engaged to marry, the club exacts what is revolutionary for France and what may set an example for the whole world—both young people submit themselves to a medical examination by the club physician. The club takes an active part in the actual marriage; 31 weddings have so far taken place under its auspices. The first one was that of Francois Furtwengler, well known Parisian magazine writer, to Miss Jeanne Fraigne, whose father is connected with the mechanical department of one of the big Paris journals.

NOTABLE WITNESSES

The club furnished four distinguished men as witnesses of the marriage—Admiral Guepratte, who is grand officer of the Legion of Honor; Leon Ritor, man of letters, municipal councillor of Paris and officer of the Legion of Honor; Charles Bertrand, member of Parliament, president of the National Union of Combatants of the great war and chevalier of the Legion of Honor; and Ambrose Rendu, municipal councillor of Paris and chevalier of the Legion of Honor. Hundreds of other members of the club attended the wedding and special music by distinguished artists was supplied at the church, through the efforts of the organization. It was a great and gala affair.

This twentieth century method of abetting Dan Cupid finds more remote counterpart in the St. Catherine's Day celebration formerly held throughout many Catholic countries and in England. Celebration of the occasion in France still marks a holiday.

All the shops of Paris close and the little grisettes of the studios and midnights of the smart fashion marts turn out in grand style. SOUR? IT GIVES ZIP

SOUR cream is the basis for many delicious baked things. There is a cake frosting made with sour cream, sour cream cookies require less shortening and have a taste all their own. Sour cream mayonnaise is a delicious dressing for fruit or vegetables. There is a way of preparing cabbage with sour cream that is most tasty. Crullers and waffles and drop cakes made with sour cream have a lightness and moistness that it's impossible to achieve with sweet milk.

Sour Cream Frosting

One cup sour cream, 1 cup sugar, 1 cup nuts, 1-16 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon vanilla. Cook cream, sugar, nuts and salt in a double boiler till a soft ball is formed when the sirup is dropped in water. It will take quite a long time to cook. Beat till cool, add vanilla and spread on cake. The frosting will stay soft and creamy. Raisins may be used in place of nuts.

Sour Cream Dressing

One and one-half cups sour cream, 1 egg yolk, 1 tablespoon sugar, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon mustard, 4 tablespoons vinegar, paprika.

Mix dry ingredients with yolk of egg. Add cream and mix thoroughly. Add vinegar slowly. Cook in double boiler till the mixture coats the spoon.

Sour Cream Cookies

Two cups sugar, 3 eggs, 1 cup butter, 1 cup sour cream, 1 teaspoon soda, 2 teaspoons cream of tartar, 1/4 teaspoon salt, nutmeg, flour to roll. Cream butter and sugar. Add yolks of eggs well beaten. Add 1/2 cup flour sifted with soda and cream of tartar. Add cream. Add another half cup of flour. Fold in whites of eggs beaten stiff. Add flour to roll. Add nutmeg. Roll and bake in a hot oven.

Short Life But Merry One Says Long Green Token

The Story of DOLLAR BILL

Here's Autobiography of Popular American Transient

Beads Was First Money

If a pompous, pink-faced man with a gleaming shirt front of diamonds moves majestically across a hotel lobby, some spectator will lean over to his companion and remark:

"Bet that guy has oodles of wampum!"

"Wampum"—meaning money. It's a slang phrase today—like macrama, berries or dough—but in point of fact wampum DOES mean money, the first money America ever knew.

It was used by the Indians and was called by other names, too—wampumpeag and plain peg. Wampum consisted of beads and belts. One black bead was worth two white ones.

The white beads were made out of the ends of periwinkle shells, and the black beads were made out of the black part of a clam shell. They were rubbed down and polished as articles of ornament and arranged in strings or belts as jewelry.

THE first English colonists in America began to use wampum for exchanges with the Indians and then among themselves. It was made a legal tender in Massachusetts and by custom soon became the prevailing currency.

The white man also proved his superiority by making counterfeit wampum.

A fathom or belt of wampum was made up of 360 beads. For the Indians it was perfect money; for the white man it became a fluctuating, unsatisfactory currency.

Soon after the settlement of Massachusetts Bay the colonists began to use what is called a barter currency. Musket bullets, for instance, were worth a farthing apiece.

HISTORY shows that the English government made no objection to the emigration of the Puritans to New England except for the fact that they carried money out of the realm. Illustrative of the value of English currency among the early settlers are the following incidents:

A married preacher was allowed 30 pounds a year.

A man who stole four baskets of corn from the Indians was fined five pounds for his crime.

Carpenters, sawyers, joiners and bricklayers, whose services were in great demand, were forbidden to take more than two shillings a day for their labor.

A cow was worth 25 or 30 pounds. The years rolled by. Paper money sprang into being. Colonists' currency passed through hundreds of early crises. And then came the Revolutionary War—the greatest crisis of them all.

When the colonies went into the war, all of them made issues of paper money to meet the expenses of military preparations. The Continental Congress, having no power to tax, began to issue bills on the faith of the "Continental."

The first issue was for 300,000 Spanish dollars, redeemable in gold or silver in three years. Paper for $9,000,000 was issued before the great depreciation began.

PELATIAH WEBSTER insisted on taxation, but a member of Congress indignantly asked why the people should be taxed when they could go to the printing office and get a cart load of money.

In 1790 the bills had so deteriorated in value that they were worth two cents on the dollar.

The Bank of North America was chartered with a capital of $400,000 December 31, 1781. The bank originated in a union of Philadelphia men formed in the preceding year to supply the army with rations. They were allowed to form the bank and to issue notes to buy the required articles.

Another early crisis was Shay's Rebellion in New England in 1785 and 1786. It was an insurrection of debtors who were suffering from the collapse of the currency and the return to specie values. They clamored for paper money.

AMERICAN currency started on a temporary upward trend with the organization of the first United States bank, chartered by Congress in 1791. The bank's capital was $10,000,000, to be paid one-fourth in cash and the rest in United States bonds. The charter was to run for 20 years and the bank issued no bills smaller than $10.

The first silver was actually coined in 1794 and the first gold in the next year.

BY DOLLAR BILL

It's a short life but a gay one. I started in as part of a load of paper—and now I'm the left ear of a souvenir rabbit!

Here's how:

I was made at the Crane Mills, in Dalton, Ga., where all the government's currency paper is made.

Just as I was in the raw then. No polish or refinement. Just the same, I had the makings of an initial citizen. I wasn't any common piece of paper—not by a long shot! I was made of special fibre—trick stuff, made by a closely guarded process.

A sheet of paper I was in was big enough to make four bills, and this sheet was put up in a package with 999 other sheets.

Every other package of currency paper contains 1000 sheets. This 1000 count starts at the Crane mill and is continued through the Bureau of Printing and Engraving and into the treasury. Nobody counts wrong, everybody in the department where the error is made is held until the error is corrected.

But I think I was so important until I reached the Bureau of Printing and Engraving. They drove me through the street of Washington in a truck—just as all. As soon as I reached the bureau they put me in a steel safe behind a 20-ton steel door. I was guarded as carefully as finished currency.

While I was in my safe, some men made a plate for me. They never use the original for this. They use it to make replica plates. I went with them.

And this is the bureau's plan to keep itself from being a counterfeit. If anything should happen to the original plate, they'd have to make another one. No matter how much this second plate was like the original, it wouldn't be the original and bills printed by it would be counterfeit!

If anything should happen to the replica plate, they could easily make a new one.

PLATES GUARDED

Maybe you think they aren't careful of plates? They guard them 24 hours a day and lock them in a vault at night.

Counterfeiter got one, he could be a millionaire in a week!

In the safe where they put me at first they sent me to the printing room, where 625 employees print faster than Rockefeller ever dreamed they could make $15,000,000 a day! That's one Henry Ford can't laugh off.

Smallest bills are $1, and the largest are $100.

In the printing room they printed me first on my front. Then they sent me over to the inspection department to be examined. Finding I was all O. K., they sent me back to the printing room and another plate on my front.

Some people think a bill is made of two pieces of stuff stuck together, but they're wrong.

I was printed—front and back—a month—I went to the examining division, where I got a careful once over.

At this time I was still in a sheet with three other bills. If any one of these bills had been torn, the whole sheet would have been thrown away.

We were all right, so they put us between sheets of cardboard, ironed us with a mechanical press, trimmed the rough edges and sent us to the numbering room to be stamped with our serial numbers.

More checking and counting we were sent to the Division of Issue, in the same building. Checked and counted again. Then they packed us in a brown paper package and put us in a box to be hauled to the Treasury Building.

On the way to the treasury I felt proud. The way they took of us was flattering. Jesse James and all his boy chums couldn't have broken into that van. Its sides were an inch thick and they had enough guards around to lick the army.

I don't blame them for being careful. That van carries from $4000 to $4,000,000 each trip.

WORTHLESS

By the time I landed at the treasury, I thought I was important. Then I found I wasn't worth a jot! I had to be signed by both the treasury register and the treasurer of the United States before I counted for anything.

I was signed with three other bills. They signed us in a bunch, using four pens hooked together on a bar.

Finally we were packed again and put into a big vault where we waited for two months waiting to get into circulation.

There was $335,000,000 in that vault.

I wouldn't advise anybody to try to get away with any of it. The treasury is guarded by 58 watchmen who patrol the building day and night, with a special detail always on hand for emergency duty.

Electric signals are turned in every half hour to the office of the captain of the watch. The captain's office is in communication with the city police chief, with Fort Meyer, and with the Arsenal, so police, cavalry and artillery could be called without delay.

In the money storage vault, every time employees put a new package of bills in, they took a package out. At last my turn came. I was taken to the cash room of the treasury, and went from there into the wide, wide world.

unless proof is presented that it was destroyed.

Being too torn to be renovated and too good to be sent to the bill shredder, I was turned over in a sealed package with some other has-beens to the receiving clerk. He handed the package to a counter, who gave him a receipt and unwrapped and checked us.

The counter was a woman—all of them are—and I'll say she knew her stuff. The bill right next to me was a counterfeit. I didn't know but she spotted it right away. She stamped it "counterfeit," and it was sent over to the Secret Service Department for investigation.

When I found out that these counters handle one million dollars a day, I wasn't so surprised at their skill. That's lots of practice.

PUNCHES HOLES

When the counter came to me she put me in a package with 99 other bills then took us over to a canelling machine and punctured four holes through the bunch. Then she returned us to the clerk.

The next day we were sent up to the cutting room. A great big knife sliced us in two!

My upper half was sent to the register's office. My lower half was sent to the office of the secretary of the treasury. These halves were counted separately.

After being sliced in two, you'd think that would be the end of me. Nothing like it! My parts were carted to a building that contains a macerator.

This macerator is a huge spherical receptacle of steel, containing water and fitted on the inside with 156 closely set knives. The knives revolve.

The lid of the macerator is held down by three locks, each with its own individual key. The key to one lock is held by the treasurer, to another by the secretary, and to the third by the comptroller of currency.

Each day at 1 p. m. these three officials or their deputies, with a fourth man designated by the secretary to represent the banks and the public, gather around the macerator, unlock the lid, and toss in the money that is to be destroyed.

The capacity of the macerator is one ton, and about $1,000,000 is destroyed in it every day. One day—June 27, 1934—it destroyed $151,000,000!

CHOPPED

After they dumped my parts into the macerator, they locked the lid, set the machinery in motion, and the knives did the rest.

I stayed in there for four days, and when I got out I was a bunch of liquid pulp.

I flowed out through a valve that the same committee of four unlocked, was screened into a pit below, dried, and packed in a bale and sent to the Bureau of Printing and Engraving—where I started from.

Most of the pulp that came along with me was rolled into sheets of bookbinders' board and sold for $40 a ton. There was a time when the government would have lost money letting it go for $400,000,000 a ton!

This didn't happen to me.

They took me and a few more used to be bills, all of us being pulp together, and made us into souvenirs—little pulp animals, hats, busts, and other curios and nicknacks.

So that's the end of my tale.

I became the left ear of a pulp rabbit, which they put on sale at the Printing and Engraving Bureau entrance. It took several thousand dollars to make that bunny—and he was bought by a tourist for 25 cents!

The Club of One-eyed Men

BEGIN HERE TODAY

John Ainsley is a man of great ability and great charm. He is a man who has been in the habit of stealing from the rich and the famous for many years. He is a man who has been in the habit of stealing from the rich and the famous for many years. He is a man who has been in the habit of stealing from the rich and the famous for many years.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
"It was a fine day. The sun was shining brightly. The birds were singing. The flowers were in bloom. The children were playing in the park. The old man was sitting on the bench, looking at the children with a smile on his face."

"Did you meet the patron himself?" I asked.
"Mr. Ainsley?" I asked.
"Mr. Ainsley?" I asked.

"Monsieur is correct," said the man. "And with an eye like mine, and the heart of a dove. Of a truth, a great man."

"But certainly," I agreed. I congratulated my friend. He was a man of great ability and great charm. He was a man who has been in the habit of stealing from the rich and the famous for many years.

But it was among the ordinary probabilities that he was attracted by his brilliant appearance. One would expect the White Eagle to be far from a recognition by such a one. Still, he could not be choosier.

But I had given altogether too much of my thought to the White Eagle and his affairs. I confessed myself finally beaten. I could neither understand what would be the relation between the supercrook and the millionaire.

Even the one who had rented a furnished apartment and had lived in it only a few months one finds that little by little one has acquired a considerable quantity of possessions.

Having seen to it that my bag was safely deposited in a corner of the carriage, I walked to the platform to watch the train start. I looked at the train as it moved away, and I saw a man who was blind in one eye.

I had not examined the passenger list and so was surprised at the arrival. But I found a man who was blind in one eye. I had not examined the passenger list and so was surprised at the arrival.

I could not be mistaken; the fact that his dress was rich indeed, made no difference. In that first moment of shock, when I had realized that these loiterers on the sidewalk were blind, the features of those whom I beheld were indelibly impressed upon my memory.

All my resolutions, that I would never go more about Higgins and the White Eagle, left me. Indeed, I watched eagerly for the arrival of the supercrook. But he did not come. I waited until the last moment before the train started.

basis of half the smoke room talk during the trip but this ostentation in excessively bad taste, outdid anything else. But he was different as compared with his wife.

It was not alone that her gown was cut so low that one blushed with shame. She seemed plastered with precious stones, until one forgot how low her dress was cut.

And one jewel a pearl hanging from a chain until it rested like a round white eye upon her bosom held my fascinated eyes. It drew my companions' attention too for one of them, Brokaw by name, mentioned it.

"Got any idea what that thing's worth?"
I shook my head. "I know," he said. "I was in Mexico on the Rio de la Plata the day they bought it. Me!" he chuckled, buying a thousand-franc brooch to take him to the Museum, and thinking what a bit I'd make with it.

"And in comes Higgins and his wife, and at the top of his lungs old Josiah declares that he owns for the Kansas Pearl, and that he's brought his check for a million francs with him. He's my friend. I almost didn't show him to think how I'd been hanging over his little brooch. I paid what they asked, apologized for annoying them, and spoke out. One million francs, no matter what the exchange is, that's money."

An Intimate Story of Innermost Emotions Revealed in Private Letters

"We are never satisfied," continued Ruth. "We have moments of ecstatic satisfaction, but they do not last. Yet I think that every one, man or woman, must have a companion spirit who is more or less an affinity of one's soul, in whom one is sure of sympathy and understanding. Both men and women get this in a greater or lesser degree from their wives or their husbands. Happy or unhappy, marriage makes a man and woman yokefellow."

"I was not happy with Harry, ever, after the first six months. He was peevish, exacting, and sometimes almost brutal. I know now that these outbursts of criticism and temper were made oftentimes to justify himself in his actions in regard to me, although at the time they made me very miserable. Nevertheless there was a subtle bond between us. I knew that he had to listen to me, to take me into some kind of account in his daily life, the same as I did him. I did not ever have that feeling which I have so often now that there is no one in all the world who is first duty it is to look after me."

"Ruth, I did not have the slightest idea that you felt this way. I didn't want you to, dear, but I believe it comes to all women who have been married and who are separated from their husbands, either through death or misunderstanding."

"Are you sure that you love Walter Burke, Ruth?"
"No, I'm not sure, for I am not sure that I know what love is. I would feel most solitary if I knew that Walter was out of my ken. Besides you, my dear, he was the one friend who stood by me when I needed friends most. I could go on living without him, however, just as I went on living without Harry; and you know Mrs. Brown."

ing says:
Unless you can die when the dream is done
Oh fear to call it loving.
"I've never had any of the wild emotional thrills for Walter which most people declare are the only symptoms of love. I never tingled to my finger tips when he touched my arm. Indeed, I did not feel that when he took me in his arms and kissed me lingeringly when he left. Yet my heart grows warm and I have a feeling of satisfaction when I read his impassioned love words to me."
"It will depend, Leslie, on what he says and what he thinks, for I am sure I shall intuitively divine his thoughts when he comes to me."

LIMA THEATRES BOOK ATTRACTIVE BILLS FOR COMING WEEK

VARIETY IS FEATURE OF OFFERINGS

Thomas Meighan Stars In Play At the Quilna—Majestic Has Dog Picture

Norma Talmadge Plays Lead at the Lyric—Sigma Has Revival Pictures

BY GERTRUDE GILHAM
Excellent entertainment for summer amusement-seekers will be provided this week in the motion picture programs scheduled for various theatres. The lineup contains two new Paramount productions and several revivals.

Thomas Meighan in "The Confidence Man" which opens this afternoon at the Quilna, appears in the role that first made him famous—a crook role. The picture is heralded as a crook melodrama with touches of genuine comedy and in the supporting cast are Virginia Valli, Margaret Seddon and Charles Dow Clark. During the last half of the week the Quilna will offer another crook film, "The Moral Sinner," a story of the Paris underworld. It is based on the highly successful stage play, "Leah Kleschna" and has as its featured players Dorothy Dalton and James Rennie. This is revival week at the Sigma with seven outstanding productions on the calendar. Today brings "Thru the Back Door," starring Mary Pickford which will be succeeded on Monday by "Way Down East." On Tuesday comes "The Molly Coddle" with Douglas Fairbanks and Wednesday, "Polly Anna," another Mary Pickford picture. The last half of the week will offer "Circus Days" with Jackie Coogan, "Robin Hood" and "Tess of the Storm Country" on Thursday, Friday and Saturday respectively.

Norma Talmadge and Conway Tearle have the leading roles in "She Loves and Lies" appearing for the first four days at the Lyric. Miss Talmadge handles three characterizations in this film, ranging from a young girl to an old woman. This will be replaced by "Flapper Wives" starring May Allison. Other principals in the cast are Rockliffe Fellowes, Vera Reynolds, Edward Horton and William Monk. "The Call of the Wild" will appear at the Majestic for the first three days. "Desire" will be the offering on Wednesday and Thursday and "Dulcy" starring Constance Talmadge, will complete the week's program.

DOG PICTURE

"Call of the Wild" Shows At the Majestic

Jack London's "The Call of the Wild" is a favorite book in literature and for that reason its picturization should be of particular interest. The picture and story tell of the return of a big St. Bernard dog, Buck, to the primitive after it is stolen from a country estate in California. The thief takes the dog to Alaska during the gold rush and attempts to train him as the husky dogs of the North are trained with a club. This is not successful and he sells the dog to another man, who trains the animal with kindness rather than force. Later he becomes the property of some tenderfoot, who loses most of his dogs thru ignorance. One of them is beating Buck when he is interfered with by John Thornton, a prospector. Buck then becomes Thornton's inseparable friend. The dog hears the call of the wild but his love for his new master keeps mand that Meighan chose "The Confidence Man" out of more than one hundred and fifty stories submitted to him. It will be recalled that it was in a crook drama, "The Miracle Man," that Meighan first came into the ranks of stardom. He has also appeared in many other crook tales.

"The Confidence Man" is said to contain many of the qualities of his first crook play without in any way being an imitation of that tremendously successful picture. In support of the star are Virginia Valli, Lawrence Wheat, Charles Dow Clark, Margaret Seddon and other noted players. George Ade wrote the titles for the pictures.

The Quilna News and Aesop's Fables are preliminary features on the program. Dorothy Dalton returns to the Quilna screen after a long absence, in her most recent Paramount production, "The Moral Sinner." The film is based upon C. M. S. McCall's great play, "Leah Kleschna," in which Mrs. Fiske starred with such great success. Dorothy Dalton will be seen in the title role and James Rennie will act the part of Paul Sylvain, that character played by John Mason in the original stage production and by William Faversham in the recent revival of the play in New York. Others in the cast are Alphonso Ethier, Frederick Lewis, Paul McAllister and Florence Fair. This program will also have the Quilna News and a "Spot Family" comedy.

REVIVAL WEEK

Sigma Books Pictures for One Day Run

Several outstanding productions of the last few seasons have been grouped together and will play one day engagements at the Sigma theatre during revival week which opens this afternoon. "Thru the Back Door," in which Mary Pickford has one of the most delightful roles of her entire career, will be the attraction today. Monday brings "Way Down East," starring Lillian Gish which will be followed on Tuesday by "The Molly Coddle" with Douglas Fairbanks. Mary Pickford will also be seen on Wednesday in "Polly Anna." "Circus Days" with imitable Jackie Coogan, will be in Thursday's bill. "Robin Hood" will be the following attraction and Mary Pickford's "Tess of the Storm Country" will complete the revival program on Saturday.

"Thru the Back Door," said to be founded upon an idea supplied by "America's Sweetheart" was prepared for the screen by Marion Fairfax and was directed by Mary's brother, Jack and Alfred E. Green.

The story starts are Ostend, Belgium. Miss Pickford as Jeanne Bodamere has a mother who falls in love with Elton Reeves, a wealthy New Yorker. A whirlwind courtship results in their marriage. Little Jeanne whom the new father regards as faithful old nurse who has come considerable of a nuisance, is left with her faithful nurse, Marie, who marries a Belgian farmer and settles down to rural life near Mons. Here little Jeanne grows up and the comical things she does during her childhood furnish much delightful humor. Then at the end of five years her mother returns to take her away from the program.

LYRIC PROGRAM

Norma Talmadge in "She Loves and Lies"

The charming personality and splendid talent of Norma Talmadge have never been shown to better advantage. It is declared, man in the absorbing photograph, "She Loves and Lies" which has been revived by the Selznick Corporation. It will be shown for a first half of the week of the lyric theatre, as it is called, which is punctuated here and there with deep emotional moments. Norma Talmadge plays dual role—a role that gives her a use of three distinct names. Her principal part is that of Marie Allender, known on the stage as Marie May, who for reason popular to the play, poses as June 1926, a Greenwich Village artist. These roles give Miss Talmadge unusual play for her versatility. Conway Tearle, the handsome green star, is the leading man in the film and he plays the part of the indigent but honorable husband. The supporting cast is one of great general strength and ability and the picture is said to have been produced with lavish lender.

"Flapper Wives" with May Allison and Rockliffe Fellowes in featured roles, opens a three day stay on Thursday at the lyric. The picture reverses the usual process, being shown in advance of its presentation at a large play.

"Flapper Wives" was written by Jane Murtin, author of such pieces as "Lilac Time" and "Smile Thru" to serve as a stage vehicle for Jane Cowl, noted actress. Cowl, however, made such a tremendous hit in Shakespearean and other roles, that it was decided to hold off the debut of "Flapper Wives" until later, and put play in screen form meanwhile. The play is scheduled for Broadway showing next season.

Miss Allison returns to the screen in this production after a 5 absence during which time she has traveled around the world. She will be seen as Claudia Bigelow, a young society leader, who brought face to face with the terrors of life only after a tragedy has shaken her soul to its depths.

At the opening of the story she is reckless and daring and masks her real feelings by a display of a hearted abandonment. Wednesday, who is extremely conventional and narrow-minded, she is a diversion in frivolous entertainment. But as the plot unfolds and the various influences go to make up the drama, her story is brought to bear on her recklessness gives to her understanding and strength.

The supporting cast are such star players as Vera Reynolds, who is seen as Gloria Swanson, in "Prodigal Daughters," and Horton, remembered for fine work in "Rugles of Red" and William V. Mong.

RINGLING'S PRIZE, GORILLA

John Daniel 2nd, the only gorilla in captivity and whom the famous naturalist, Carl E. Akeley has termed "the living thing that is nearer to man than anything else," is to pay this city a visit Thursday. He will come here as the foremost zoological rarity among many exhibited by the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey circus.

John Daniel is the third gorilla ever brought to America. The first was a baby that lived but a few months. The second, John Daniels, 1st, was exhibited in New York by the Ringling Brothers in 1921. He died two weeks after his arrival. Prototyping by their experience with John Daniel 1st, the Ringling Brothers have secured the services of Miss Alice Cunningham, the one person who understands gorillas better than anyone else, to care for and be the constant companion of John Daniel, 2nd.

Miss Cunningham was present at the capture of the gorilla in the Congo region, Africa, crossed the Atlantic with him and now occupies a stateroom next to that which is allotted to John Daniel 2nd, on the circus train. The two are daily conveyed to and from the circus grounds in a specially built motor car. This remarkable animal, always accompanied by Miss Cunningham, will be on exhibition in the menagerie tent. There he will occupy a glass front apartment so placed that all who enter the circus may make a careful study of him. While it is difficult to give accurate measurements of John Daniel because of the fact that he is growing with remarkable rapidity, recent figures give his weight at 110 pounds and his height 40 inches. He is a little over three years old and will not reach his full stature until he is fifteen.

It is estimated that a half million people paid their respects to John Daniel 2nd, in New York. In his suite at the McAlpin Hotel he entertained such notables as the scientist, Carl Akeley and Dr. Yerkes of the National Council of Research. He is easily the most remarkable zoological exhibit ever in America. In writing of him, the eminent journalist, Arthur Brisbane, has said, "See this gorilla if you can."

NEW YORK — (By Associated Press) — A brisk demand for the northwestern railroad shares, apparently reflected on the belief that higher wheat prices will bring them increased prosperity, featured Saturday's half holiday session of the stock market. Trading was in good volume at the opening but the market soon tapered into a state of lethargy, the total sales being the smallest of any session since August 11, 1923.

"Big Four" led the advance in the rail by jumping four points to a new 1924 top at 120, and was followed into new high ground by Northern Pacific, Great Northern, Pennsylvania and Chicago and North Western. Southern Railway established a record high for all time at 65 1/4.

American Water Works common continued its sensational climb by moving up 2 1/2 points to 96 1/2, and the new peak price, and West Penn common, a subsidiary climbed 7 points to a new top 80. Other issues to sell at their best prices of the year were Atlantic Gulf and West Indies, International Nickel and Famous Players.

FRACTIONAL GAINS
All the so-called postal stocks closed at small fractional gains. U. S. Steel common at 100 1/2, Baldwin at 115, American Can 114 1/2.

The feature of the foreign exchange market was the further weakness of French francs, which fell about ten points overnight and closed the week just above the five cent mark. Dutch guilders jumped about 15 points to 37.71 cents on nominal trading, and the other principal rates showed only minor changes.

The weekly clearing house statement showed decreases in most of the principal items. Loans, discounts and investments dropped $74,539,000 cash in own vaults, $2,827,000; net demand deposits $73,451,000, and time deposits $19,453,000. The reserve of member banks in the federal reserve bank increased $25,724,000. Aggregate reserves totaled $222,249,000, leaving excess reserve of $49,141,359, an increase of $35,725,230.

Day's total sales $14,400 shares.

TEACH HOME SCIENCE

BERLIN—Every day has been county fair day on Leipziger street recently. Downtown shops are converting their show windows into exhibitions of what they call "warekunde," or domestic science. The exhibits show how household goods and wearing apparel are manufactured and the difference between good and bad grades of manufacture.

SPANIARD HONORED

MANILA—Dr. H. H. Hagedorn, acting superior Dominican Corporation of the Philippines and former president of the University of Santo Tomas, the oldest university under the American flag, has been elected rector of the Dominican college in Cebu, Cebu, Philippines. He was born in Spain but has lived 20 years in the Philippines. Although he speaks English fluently he has never been in the United States.

DOG SWALLOWED $1,000

BATON ROUGE—Lucky, a Boston bull terrier, recently underwent an operation for "diamonditis." He was found to have swallowed two diamond rings worth $1,000, penny, a quarter and a dime. His owners first became suspicious when they saw the dog swallow the leg of an alarm clock.

MORMONS QUIT JAPAN

TOKYO—The field has not been found fertile for missionary work of the Mormon church in Japan, and the Mormon missionaries will be withdrawn. It has been announced. The Mormons have maintained mission headquarters in Tokyo for 20 years.

NO ONE CAN LEAVE

BERLIN—Any German wishing to go abroad for pleasure must pay $10 for permission to leave the country. The cabinet has decided that no person will be allowed to take more than $50 in German money or foreign money to the border.
